Bares 'Medical Murder' In Soviet Conspiracy

DOCTOR TELLS ABOUT GORKY'S POISON DEATH

Weird Confession At Treason Trial Reveals Details Of Noted Author's Demise.

Conspirators Bent On Death Mission Gained Confidence Of Famed Physician.

(By International News Service)

MOSCOW—How a former Soviet secret police chief wooed and wormed his way into the confidence of a highly placed physician with gifts of flowers and costly French wines was unfolded today as Moscow's uncanny treason trial delved further into the fine arts of medical murder.

Today's fantastic story of plots and counter-revolutionary conspiracies was taken up by Dr. L. G. Levin, former chief of the Kremlin hospital and one of the most eminent physicians in all Soviet Russia.

Charge Author Poisoned.

Levin's testimony centered about the death of Maxim Gorky, famous Soviet author, now alleged to have been poisoned and murdered as part of the vast anti-communist conspiracy for which the present 21 defendants are being tried.

Levin opened the day's testimony by telling how Henry G. Yagoda, former OGPU chieftain, gained his confidence while he was Gorky's official physician.

The stocky, white-haired doctor, pince-nez glasses bobbing on his nose, spoke in flat, unemotional tones as he confessed:

"Yagoda was most friendly to me. He displayed the greatest attention. But I saw nothing unusual in it. I was flattered. . . .

"He would send me French wines and splendid flowers.

"He presented me with a country home.

"But I took it all for granted, since I was the chief Kremlin physician."

Causes Sensation.

This weird confession was fol-

MOUNTAIN STILL HIDES AIRLINER

Father Of 2 On Plane Buried Today As Week-Old Search Brings No Clues.

While funeral services were held today for Jay N. Dirlam, across the continent the white-capped pinnacles of the somber Sierra Nevadas in California held their week-old secret of the whereabouts of his son and daughter who disappeared with seven other persons aboard a TWA plane.

A week ago tonight the big airliner was lost in the stormswept mountains as J. Tracy Dirlam and Mary Lou Dirlam, students at Leland Stanford university were hurrying to the bedside of their father. And today the mystery of their whereabouts was an impenetrable as it was shortly after the storm buffeted luxury ship radioed that it was seeking a place to land, and then disappeared.

As their father was laid to rest today, the prospects of finding the two students grew darker. Snow and rain and wind so hampered searchers that it appeared that the wrecked plane, possibly buried under new snow, might not be found until the snows have melted in the late spring.

Mr. Dirlam died Sunday afternoon without knowing of the disaster which had overtaken his

Not Sorry, Says Young Mother Who Killed Two Babies

BABYLON, N. Y. —(AP)— Mrs. Margaret Thomsen, a young mother from the mud flats of West Babylon, accused of strangling her two small children, shook her head today when asked if she was sorry her babies were dead.

"Why should I be?" she asked, "those kids are better off."

Assistant District Attorney Lindsay Henry said she had confessed she throttled the children, Kathleen Elizabeth, 3, and Henry, jr., five months old, in despair over their poverty.

"The two kids never had no fresh milk," Henry said she complained, "and we never had enough food."

She was held in the Suffolk county jail at Riverhead on charges of first degree murder.

2 MOVES TO AID JOBLESS BEGUN

Mayor Studies Slum Clearance Proposal; Plan To Provide Work For 200 Submitted.

Two major moves to relieve unemployment conditions in Mansfield were in the making today.

The city administration was preparing to seek a share of the federal government's new $55,000,000 appropriation to Ohio for slum clearance, and WPA officials were awaiting word of the portion of a new fund allocation to that agency for projects in this territory.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter today had taken under advisement a proposal for an FHA slum clearance project in Mansfield, with the project, if approved, to be financed from a $55,000,000 appropriation for Ohio.

Submitted to Mayor Hunter yesterday by H. J. Halper, Akron, member of the state housing board, the proposal calls for the appointment of a five-member board to make a survey of housing conditions here to determine the need for a slum clearance program.

Two members of the board would be appointed by the mayor, one by Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, one by Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston and one by Probate Judge C. J. Anderson.

In requesting approval of the federal expenditure for housing improvements, the board would be required to show where the clearance program would eliminate fire and health hazards and to what extent it would provide employment for men on relief rolls in the county.

Should the city project be approved by state and national authorities, the areas to be cleared

FOLLOW TYGERS

Students to Charter Buses For Game Friday.

The surprising comeback of the Tygers in the district tournament at Sandusky after a mediocre season has revived basketball interest at Mansfield high school.

Excitement over the cage team's showing is so pronounced that plans are now being arranged by the Student Representative council to provide transportation for students to the semi-final game in which the Tygers will meet Bellevue Friday night.

The council will arrange for at least two buses to transport students to Sandusky, J. C. Stout, council advisor, said today. Low rate round trip tickets will be sold in a campaign to be sponsored this week.

A "pep" rally in charge of Robert Rhoads and William Condon, students, and Zane Wilson of the school faculty will be held Friday morning.

Langlie was a strong favorite.

Davey Skips 3rd Term Hint In Talk Blasting Liquor Critics

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — The Democratic electorate of Ohio mulled over Governor Davey's second attempt to vindicate his administration today but was unable to find in it any declaration as to whether or not he will become a candidate for re-election.

The chief executive in a radio address, scheduled as the first in a series of fireside chats on certain phases of the evidence brought out by the senate investigating committee, confined his address for the most part to the liquor department.

He reiterated charges that the committee seized on isolated cases of ill practice and declared that the state should be proud of the liquor commission's achievements as a whole. He said:

"What are the results? During nine months of the year before I came into office, the liquor department produced a profit for the state treasury of only $3,000,000. Please remember that figure, $3,000,000. In our first year we produced $9,000,000. In our second year, $13,000,000. And last year over $16,000,000.

"Here is something more significant. The Ohio liquor department produced more profit than any state in this union. Let us compare with Pennsylvania. They did a business last year of $80,000,000. Ohio did a business of $55,000,000. Their profit was $500,000 less than ours. On $25,000,000 less business we made $500,000 more profit than Pennsylvania."

The chief executive went on to say that the enforcement division of the department had made great

UNION LEADERS GET TERM OF 1 TO 5 YEARS

Clevelanders Found Guilty Of Extorting $1,200 From Head Of Restaurant Chain.

2 OTHERS FACE TRIAL

State Charges Pair Demanded 'Fee' Before Putting Men To Work On Building.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND—A common pleas court jury today convicted Donald A. Campbell and John E. McGee, labor leaders, of extorting $1,200 from Vernon Stouffer, head of a restaurant chain.

Campbell and McGee had been on trial for three weeks before a jury of six men and six women. They were the first of four union leaders to go on trial on charges of extortion.

Head Union Units.

Campbell is president of the Painters District council and McGee is president of the Laborers' District council.

William J. Corrigan, defense attorney, announced immediately he would file a motion for a new trial.

Judge Alva R. Corlett sentenced the men to one to five-year terms. Judge Corlett said the men would be sent to the penitentiary within five days.

Municipal Safety Director Eliot Ness, 34, obtained the evidence on which Campbell, McGee and two other labor leaders were indicted. The others, awaiting trial, are James P. McDonnell, Campbell's assistant, and Mose Donley, furniture finishers' union business agent.

Delay Threatened.

County Prosecutor Frank T. Cullitan charged that Campbell instructed Stouffer to pay McGee $1,200 or face indefinite delay in the renovation of a building.

State witnesses other than Stouffer testified they paid Campbell $1,130 indirectly and $370 directly in a dozen other alleged "shakedowns."

Campbell and McGee denied having either solicited or accepted money from Stouffer. Defense counsel claimed that "union labor is on trial." The Cleveland Federation of Labor voted "moral and financial" support to the defendants.

FIGHTS OUSTER

Sparks to Seek Court Order To Get State Job Back.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Harry A. Sparks, whose job as bituminous engineer in the state highway department was abolished, said today he would ask the Franklin county common pleas court for a writ of mandamus to compel Highway Director John J. Jaster to restore him to the position.

"I am not doing this for personal motives but I want to find out if the civil service laws amount to anything," Sparks said. "The highway director abolished my job for what he called the sake of economy and lack of work, but in his speech before the legislature, Gov. Martin L. Davey charged me with inefficiency and disloyalty."

Davey had ordered Jaster to abolish the job.

The new cases reported are Thomas Swihart, 28, of Lincoln Heights, and Alvena Spriggins, 16, of Madison township, a student at Senior High school.

News-Journal's New Type Receives Enthusiastic Approval of Young, Old

Increased Legibility Makes for Easier Reading and Relieves Strain on Eyes, Consensus of Comment From Mansfielders In All Walks of Life; Here's What Some of Them Say.

Mansfield in general has approved The News-Journal's new "face," which made its first appearance yesterday, according to expressions heard on all sides last night and this morning.

Eye specialists and optometrists, men who know the science of vision, were enthusiastic about the increased legibility provided by new type which was installed in The News-Journal mechanical department over the week-end and which was used for the first time Monday.

Some of the interesting comments came from persons who have always required glasses for newspaper reading, but who found it possible to clearly see the figures and letters in yesterday's paper without their "specs."

Mrs. Mary Hiltabiddle, 1 Tremont street, who will be 91 years old this month and is one of the most avid readers in Mansfield, and who usually reads The News-Journal from "kivver to kivver," especially the sports page, said today that it "did beat all what a difference a little extra white space around the letters made." She likes the new type because she can read an article more quickly.

Following are a few of the comments made by readers after they had seen the new type:

W. L. Miller, superintendent of Mansfield schools—The new type is good for the tired business man—and superintendent. It's more readable and easier on the eyes.

Mrs. Paul F. Cropper, housewife—It isn't necessary to compare the old type with the new in order to see what an improvement it is. Every letter stands out distinctly.

Rev. David N. Roller, pastor—I noticed the difference in the appearance of the paper as soon as I picked it up. The News-Journal's "face-lifting" has increased its attractiveness, and makes it a pleasure to read.

Arliss F. Porter, clerk of board of elections—The new type face gives The News-Journal a cleaner appearance. I think the change was a good move.

G. W. Marriott, county prosecutor—I need something like that. For the person who reads with glasses, the new type is much clearer and the lines seem to be set farther apart. I read the paper last night with less strain on my eyes.

Norman L. Wolfe, county auditor—I think the change was an excellent idea. It made a very noticeable difference in the paper and I found The News-Journal a lot easier to read.

H. W. Arlin, president of Mansfield Board of Education — The lines of type seem to be spaced

FRANCE HIKES ARMS BUDGET

Sides With Britain By Voting $750,000,000 Fund For War Materials For Year.

(By International News Service)

PARIS—Siding with Great Britain in defiance of gun-stocked dictatorships, the French government today announced plans for a $750,000,000 armaments increase during the coming year.

The appropriation will comprise the greatest peacetime arms budget for France in history. It will be administered by the newly-created autonomous defense committee, which is not responsible to the chamber of deputies.

France's rearmament program was announced at conclusion of a long meeting of the council of ministers, during which Premier Camille Chautemps explained creation of the defense fund and stressed the necessity of floating huge loans to protect France against the menace of war.

Chautemps stated unanimous parliamentary approval was essential "to support the nation in the face of existing perils." He announced he would go before the chamber of deputies on Thursday to ask a vote of confidence.

HUNT RECORDS

Detectives Assigned To Civil Service Case.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates today has assigned two detectives to investigate the theft of records reported missing from the office of the civil service commission in the city building.

Detectives Lee J. Remy and Oscar Krupp were given the case today with orders from the chief to "clean it up."

The theft of the records, some of which dated back as far as 25 years ago, was reported to the police by Dr. L. C. Benedict, senior member of the commission.

Among the missing records were examination papers and physical records of city employes as well as communications from the service directors' office.

London's Man-On-Street Backs 'Peace Or We Fight' Warning

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Prime Minister Chamberlain's "peace or we fight" declaration to the world brought a mixed response today from London's man in the street.

To some it seemed all right.

"Sure, I'd fight again," grinned a bus conductor with gun powder-marked face.

Many didn't give much thought to the parliamentary appeal for support of Britain's "almost terrifying" armament program to back up peace talks with dictators.

"Glad Chamberlain's gout is better," was a telegrapher's comment. Some others thought the armament program all wrong.

There was political and public opposition to the premier's policy, but his appeal to British fighting spirit was not without widespread response.

"The days of namby pamby international pacifism are over," proclaimed the Daily Mail, pro-Chamberlain, in today's editorial.

Avowing that "I, myself, would fight for the preservation of democracy," Chamberlain last night won a vote of confidence from the house of commons both for pursuing peace talks with Germany and Italy, and, if they failed, for stepping up an already staggering rearmament program.

Chamberlain admitted the headlong rearmament drive was being utilized psychologically, when he said:

"The sight of this enormous, this almost terrifying power which Britain is building up has a sobering effect, a steadying effect, on the opinion of the world."

Verbal Clash Takes Place As American Visits With Germany's Feuhrer.

By PIERRE J. HUSS
(INS Staff Correspondent)
(Copyright, 1938)

BERLIN — For the first time in his career, Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler today heard from an American statesman a forthright denunciation of naziism as a practical and enduring force in world affairs.

The detractor, speaking straight from the shoulder, was Herbert Clark Hoover, 31st president of the United States, who spent 40 minutes in private audience with the fuehrer.

Press Aid Barred.

Hitler barred Hoover's personal press attache from the meeting, but a reliable source revealed to this correspondent that their conversation developed into one of the most remarkable ideological clashes in recent times.

Without mincing words, Hoover bluntly informed Hitler that the United States will never become reconciled to understanding, or even having the slightest tolerance for naziism as a political and national creed.

He stated further that American democratic ideals reject the fundamental principles on which the nazi regime is based and upon which it flourishes.

Doubts Germany's Tolerance.

Hoover, according to this well-informed source, went so far as to even boldly intimate his own doubts as to the durability of the nazi ideology within the borders of Germany itself.

From this revelation, it could be taken for granted that the Hoover-Hitler meeting was none too successful beyond the usual formal cordiality that diplomatic protocol demands be extended to a visiting statesman.

Hoover expressed keen interest in the German housing program and the general economic situation. The Fuehrer thereupon painted a glowing picture of Nazi progress within the past five years, whereafter a more general

Paralyzed Girl Wagers On '50-50' Chance With Life

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—(U.P.)—Sylva Eugenia Davis took a "50-50" chance with her blighted life today and underwent a spinal operation that may kill her after she has learned to write, draw, paint and read books without the use of her paralyzed arms.

She spent her time today consoling her mother, Mrs. Carlos C. Davis, who pleaded in vain with her to forego the operation.

Sylva is 20. She was afflicted at birth with spastic paralysis, and never was able to use her arms or legs. She spent her days in a wheel chair, observing with avid interest the things that went on beyond her windows. She learned to talk, then to read. She could turn the pages of books with her tongue. Her parents bought a typewriter and she pecked at it with the rubber end of a pencil that she held in her mouth. Using a brush in the same manner, she began tinting photographs.

With her education grew her desire for a more normal life, and when a physician offered to perform the operation and said that it might provide her partial use of her limbs, she demanded it.

The operation was scheduled today at St. Luke's hospital.

$5,000,000 Fund Challenge Spurs Battle Over TVA

SPENDING BY U. S. AGENCY HELD ILLEGAL

Dispute On Board Appears Headed for Inquiry By Congress, Trade Board.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Troubles of the Tennessee Valley Authority were further complicated today by the revelation that the comptroller general's office has challenged legality of expenditures aggregating $4,748,505 disbursed by TVA over a period of three years.

Comptroller general accountants said they had challenged expenditures aggregating $2,013,326 for the fiscal year 1934 and 1935 and 1936 accounts increased the disputed figure to almost $5,000,000.

These reports have not yet been submitted to congress. TVA is assured statutory right to reply to the challenges before any formal report is made. Items challenged include purchase of costly livestock, alleged unauthorized employment of workers and transportation disbursements.

Investigations Rumored.

Dispute among the board of directors which has split TVA wide open appeared to be headed toward investigation either by congress or the federal trade commission.

Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley (D., Ky.) told questioners that something might be worked out to avoid an inquiry, however.

"I don't know whether I will favor the Norris proposal, although I prefer it to a congressional investigation," Barkley said. "It may not be necessary to have any investigation."

Sen. George W. Norris (Ind., Neb.) wants a federal trade commission investigation of TVA whose directors have been publicly exchanging serious charges reflecting upon conduct of the irrigation, flood control, fertilizer and water power experiment in the Tennessee valley. Norris plans to discuss the TVA situation in a senate address today.

Sen. H. Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) and William H. King (D., Utah) have proposed a senate investigation of TVA operations. There were reports today of rising sentiment for a joint congressional investigation of TVA although there is no assurance that a senate majority could be persuaded to vote for a congressional inquiry rather than inquiry by the federal trade commission.

Rep. Maury Maverick (D., Tex.) has pending three investigation proposals, one by a joint committee, one by a house committee and one by an independent agency, such as the trade commission.

Italians Planning Warship Parade In Honor of Hitler

ROME— (AP) —Plans for a review of more than 200 Italian warships in honor of Adolf Hitler on his approaching state visit were announced today as British-Italian friendship negotiations began after weeks of careful preparation.

Soon after arrangements had been made for a talk tonight between Count Galeazzo Ciano, foreign minister, and Lord Perth, British ambassador, preparatory to formal negotiations, it was announced that on the occasion of Hitler's visit early in May there would be a gigantic display of Italy's naval strength.

Ninety submarines and a fleet of fast torpedo boats will be among more than 200 ships in the review, it was announced, and air force squadrons will make a sham attack on battleships.

There was some surprise in British quarters at the announcement, almost coincident with the start of friendship negotiations.

It was estimated that more than $2,000,000 would be spent in entertaining Hitler.

Workers For Defunct Lorain Rail Line Get Right To Operate Transit System.

(By Associated Press)

LORAIN — Workers who for years maintained and operated equipment of the now defunct Lorain Street Railroad company, today held an exclusive 15-year city transportation franchise.

Employes' Transit Lines, Inc., was victorious last night in a city council meeting at which three other bidders sought the franchise.

Those who competed with the employes were the Cleveland-Lorain Highway Coach company, The Lorain Transit Lines, headed by F. W. Coen, former receiver for the Street Railroad company, and The City Bus company, backed by Cleveland capital.

The employes-turned-operators informed the council they are prepared to provide Lorain with adequate bus service within 48 hours' notice.

Employes' Transit Lines, Inc., was organized by 39 of the concern's 45 workers.

E. V. Emery of Sandusky purchased the railway at auction last August and has operated it on a month-to-month franchise.

Employes of the Lake Shore Electric railway are to meet at Sandusky tomorrow to form a permanent organization to negotiate for co-operative purchase and operation of that line.

CIVIC MUSIC AUDIENCE SEES FUTURE MOVIE STAR IN BEATTY

It is quite probable that Mansfielders one day will point to a handsome and successful movie star, one Douglas Beattie, and say with some pride, "We heard him sing in concert once—before the movies claimed him."

For everywhere Beattie appears, there are predictions that he will be another Nelson Eddy.

It was heard frequently last night at Senior High school auditorium where the young California bass-baritone was presented as the third and final number on the civic Music Association program for its first season.

Beattie himself is intrigued by the idea of the movies, although he ruefully admits that so far there has been no place for him.

Despite the fact that many of his numbers were unfamiliar to his audience, he was received with warm appreciation and was called upon time and again for encores. His program was chosen to show the many sparkling facets of his voice, sometimes rising to a splendid power, as in the Serenade from "Faust," and again softening to a mere whisper, as in "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes." But whatever he sings, he interprets with color and dramatic intensity.

One of his finest numbers was an ehcore when he sung the lovely "Evening Star," from "Tannhauser."

He sung two arias, the serenade from "Faust" and "La Calunnia" from Rossini's "Barber of Seville." The former was interpreted with a resonant tone and dramatic fervor, while the rascally Basilio fairly connives his evil schemes before one's eyes, as Beattie sings of his plans.

A group of Rusisan songs was warmly received, although made up of unfamiliar numbers, while a group of Schubert and Brahms revealed the singer's flare for the dramatic.

Of his folk songs, the loveliest was the old Welsh air, "All Through the Night." But that he can combine humor and frivolity with drama was demonstrated when he sang "The Donkey's Burial" and "The Tom Cat."

One of his modern songs was "Feast," a poem by Edna St. Vincent Millay, for which Mooreheart has written the music.

Before Beattie was presented last evening by W. L. Miller, retiring president of the Civic Music association, introduced his successor, Rev. David N. Roller, who spoke briefly of the membership drive of the association which will open Mar. 21.

SEARCHERS FIND MORE BODIES IN FLOODED AREAS

Believe Roadside Campers Might Have Perished In Sudden Rise of River.

(By United Press)

LOS ANGELES—The search for eastern tourists lost in last week's flood became a problem for relief agencies today. Authorities feared that the toll among the visitors might not be known for months and that bodies of some may have been washed into the ocean.

There were hundreds of inquiries from anxious relatives of persons who had come to California on vacation. Some of these persons were safe, some were en route to their homes, and some were missing.

Most of the permanent residents had been accounted for, and there were only a few unidentified bodies among the 141 known dead.

The destruction of two tourist camps in West Riverside, when a cloudburst sent the Santa Ana river on a rampage and deluged the camps under 40 feet of water, and the fact that many tourists were camping on the roadsides in their auto trailers, made the task of accounting for them more difficult. Registration records of the two camps were lost, and after the waters receded, mud was piled almost to the tops of standing automobiles.

More Bodies Located.

A few tourists' bodies were being found. That of Philip Evenson of Holland, Minn., was recovered near West Riverside. Coroner B. F. White was checking a report that a second Minnesotan may have perished with him. Martin Hytjan, Laos of Holland, was returning east in the same car with Evenson, according to a message from David Anderson of Ruthton, Minn.

They were believed to have been drowned while trying to escape from the car when the torrent struck.

Names of four Illinois tourists were placed on the missing list by the same means. Louis Steelsmith, with a wife and two children, had started out to drive home to Illinois last Wednesday. This was the day of the flood. Their route led through West Riverside, and they have not been heard from since. Coroner White feared they were washed off Mission boulevard and drowned

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

Sidetracking a Boss.

THE PRECARIOUS nature of political leadership was never better illustrated than by the recent happenings in the Democratic party in Pennsylvania. From the national standpoint, the most interesting thing is the revelation that Senator Joseph P. Guffey, supposed to be the most powerful political boss in the country, just isn't a boss at all.

THE DEMONSTRATION of this was a complete surprise to politicians in Washington, and there is reason to believe it was considerable of a surprise to Mr. Guffey himself. Not even the greasy panegyrics heaped upon him at the meeting of the state committee in Harrisburg two weeks ago were sufficient to conceal the fact that Senator Guffey's ambition to become governor had been squelched by his own organization and that a ticket had been indorsed by the Guffey machine which was altogether distasteful to Mr. Guffey, its supposed owner.

IN OTHER words, the great organization which Mr. Guffey has built up in the last five years, upon which vast sums of money have been lavished, which has been nourished with more federal and state patronage than any organization ever got before and of which Mr. Guffey was the national acknowledged leader—this organization not only wouldn't let him be governor himself but wouldn't even let him name the gubernatorial candidate. And while Mr. Guffey erupted and exploded all over the place at the first meeting, when his lack of control appeared, at the second he accepted the inevitable and swallowed what certainly must have been a pretty bitter dose.

WHAT the ultimate result as it concerns the state ticket; whether the bellicose John L. Lewis, the labor leader, tamely submits to having his man, Mr. Kennedy, sidetracked; or, as is now expected, Mr. Kennedy enters the field within the next few days; or whether the situation redounds to the advantage of that gallant man, ex-Governor Gifford Pinchot, are, of course, interesting questions, but more interesting nationally is the question of who will control the big Pennsylvania delegation of 72 to the next Democratic national convention. That's as important an item of practical politics as there is. Until this Harrisburg happening no one doubted that in 1940 Senator Guffey would have the whole 72 in his pocket. Certainly, though there was no test, he seemed to have the solid delegation in 1936, and in 1932 he had at least 60 delegates who, delivered solidly to Mr. Roosevelt at Chicago, made his nomination possible. Those who know the facts have always credited the first nomination as much to Senator Guffey as any other man. If it had not been for Mr. Guffey, Al Smith would have had the Pennsylvania delegates and Franklin Roosevelt would never have been president.

THAT IS a cold political fact which cannot be disputed. Once in the White House, Mr. Roosevelt recognized his obligations to Senator Guffey in a big way. So did Chairman Farley, his close personal friend. Guffey has had a far bigger slice of federal patronage pie in the five years of the Roosevelt regime than any other senator—in fact, than any other two senators. No politician in any state at any time ever had the distribution of as much federal patronage and federal money as Guffey. He has had many thousands of jobs to use in the building up of his organization. The state has been literally drenched with federal funds, and Mr. Guffey has been the sole distributing agent.

IT WAS Mr. Guffey who, in 1934, inaugurated the New Deal national campaign to take the colored voters away from the Republicans. He sold the idea to the president and Mr. Farley for national use, but applied it particularly to Pennsylvania, in which there are more than 300,000 registered colored voters, a great percentage of whom are on the relief rolls. It was Guffey, too, who early formed an alliance with Lewis and who, more than anyone else, brought about the Roosevelt-CIO political accord, now much weakened but in 1936 very compact indeed. With all this back of him; with his grateful personal friend in the White House; with the Democrats in power in state as well as nation, with unlimited funds, a great propaganda machine, himself in the senate, and more jobs than the late Boise Penrose ever dreamed of, it seems hard to believe that Guffey's grip could be loosened or his orders disputed. Yet, the fact is, Guffey seemed to have no grip at all on the state committee and his orders were thown out the window. All of which makes it likely that if there is anything to fight over in the Pennsylvania 1940 delegation, the Guffey influence will not be dominant, which, upon reflections is a very strange thing indeed.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Looks like the beginning of a new rash of movies about the woes of vaudevillians....There's Shirley Temple in "Little Miss Broadway" and also "Goodbye Broadway" for starters....Latter will be recognized as erstwhile Gleason opus. "The Shannons of Broadway"...In tune with the times, troupers of the new version are identified as members of traveling units — playing picture show houses!

Highlight of the Warner club (studio self-help society) annual party was, as usual, the screened "blow-ups" of the preceding year: those comic hits in which the nice demure heroines and stalwart heroes are caught forgetting their lines....And refreshing in the long parade of "Damns!" and better was the little-girl apology of Bonita Granville, a little girl, who said, "Oh, I forgot. I'm so sorry!"...

Charles Winninger's stand-in is his brother Adolph, who is retired but likes to put on grease-paint. ...Once the Winningers — there were five of them—each had a separate stock company....And one could take another's place in a show without the audience's being the wiser.

By all reports they're not having a wonderful time with "Having Wonderful Time," screen rights to which cost plenty....One reason may be fact that Jewish characters of play were changed for movie purposes to straight, non-dialect talkers....Which should give about the same results as parlor-patterers who preface a dialect joke with, "This would be funny if I could tell it in dialect!"...

The "Three Comrades" are Robert Taylor, Robert Young and Franchot Tone....In the picture only Tone will wear the close-cropped haircut accepted as German....Studio originally planned short trims for all three, and Tone was first in the barber shop....When plans were changed suddenly (idea being to make locale of story indefinite, not Germany) it was too late to save Tone, but Young and Taylor escaped the clippers.

Cutter at Universal is supposed to be son of the late John Bunny, rotund early film comic—but he won't talk about it. . . .

SANDE'S HORSE WILL BE SHORT-PRICED AT 4 TO 1 FOR DERBY

By DAVIS J. WALSH
INS Sports Editor.

NEW YORK — Stagehand, the sleight-of-hand horse with which Earle Sande worked that hat trick in the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap on Saturday last, beating the great Seabiscuit by a nostril, will be short-priced, the writer can say definitely today, at 4-1 when the winter book figures on the Kentucky derby are released a few days hence.

At the same time, it will be discovered that Fighting Fox is held as second choice, probably at 6-1, and that the two-year-old champion, Menow, rates well back with Tiger at 12's.

Thus do the callous, unfeeling "books" pay tribute to the colt which, on Saturday, came down in front of the greatest handicap horses in trading, borrowing from the fanciful pen of Hans Christian Andersen.

Stagehand was nothing as a two-year-old. He still was a maiden as late as Jan. 1, but it's an error to say that he had won no money. He won the sum of $340 last year.

In five races this year, including the two great Santa Anita stakes, he has won $136,000 for owner Maxwell Howard who, at Trainer Sande's insistence, bought him from Joe. E. (Anything for a Laugh) Widener, with whom that sort of thing is fast becoming habit-forming. He also sold Azucar before his Santa Anita victory a few years ago—both sales for feed-bill money.

If Joe E. was in the boxing dodge, he'd know better. He'd piece out his "bumis."

ANYHOW, everybody knows that Stagehand simply doesn't like the 2-year-old distances but, from five-eighths of a mile on in, he comes like at bat out of the blue. In running a track record of 2:01 3-5 on Saturday, for instance, he did his final quarter in very close to 24 seconds flat and still was in top stride when his nose passed the judges at the derby distance of a mile and a quarter.

That's one reason the colt must go to the post at practically even money for the Churchill Downs race. Another is that Sande probably will rest him for a short time and then work him up for the derby effort. In other words, they'll still be remembering him as he was an Santa Anita when the first reading goes up on the board on derby day.

Incidentally, Nedayr at 10-1 and Mountain Ridge at 15 are the only other short priced winter book colts in the derby entries which at last accounts, will total 103. Therefore, if your blood runs rich and you crave paresis, there are almost a hundred other choices in the play-or-pay books at prices up to 1,000 to 1. But personally I think it would be simpler to buy building lots in Asia Minor.

LEADERS HOLD POSITIONS

CHICAGO—(U.P.)— Leaders held their positions in the singles, doubles, and five-man divisions today as the American Bowling Congress 38th annual tournament entered its sixth day.

WIN FIRST TITLE FOR BUTLER HIGH

Although unsuccessful in their bid for the district crown, the Butler high school Bulldogs compiled one of the best records of any Class B team in this district this year.

Finishing second in the Richland county league, the Bulldogs, coached by M. L. Stearns, came back to win the county tournament crown. It was the first tournament title ever won by Butler.

In defeating Butler Ontario in the tournament finals, the Bulldogs avenged the only two defeats suffered prior to the elimination games.

Butler registered 15 wins in 18 games, the last loss being administered by Sulphur Springs of Crawford county in a first round district tournament game in Carey, last week.

The Butler team will be honored at a community banquet Thursday night.

Vitt Attempts to Correct Feller's Faults

NEW ORLEANS—(U.P.)—Oscar Vitt today set out to correct the demonstrated weakness of the Cleveland Indians' brightest star, Bob Feller. Feller had his effectiveness reduced a year ago by his inability to hold runners on base. Vitt is determined to correct this and devoted a lengthy session to such work yesterday.

The Tribe's new pilot advised his "million dollar kid" to shorten and quicken his tremendous leg motion preparatory to delivering a pitch. He also urged the youngster to speed up his arm motion after the "stretch."

TOO TOUGH FOR PRINCE

Mephisto Toys With Ilaki as He Wins Match In Less Than 10 Minutes.

The Great Mephisto, twice the champion of the light heavyweight division of the wrestling fraternity, is definitely on his way to another crack at the title. This he proved last night by disposing of Prince Ali Ilaki of Bagdad, in less than 10 minutes, on the feature bout of the weekly Quality club show at the Armory last night.

Before a capacity ladies' night crowd, the Great One clamped the Arabian prince into the "pry bar" toe hold to take the first fall in 6 minutes.

The prince never had a chance, for the few grips he applied to the former champ were soon broken.

Mephisto slapped the titled one in the "pry bar" to take the second fall and match in less than 4 minutes of the second fall. That the Mephisto is the greatest piece of grappling machinery to show here to date there is no doubt.

Joe Magyar, Hungary, and "Silver Streak" Davis, Texas, grappled to a draw in the semi-final contest. Magyar took the initial round in 14 minutes with a series of body slams and smother.

Davis slammed the Hungarian lad about for 12 minutes of the second stanza before applying a back head scissors to take the count.

After about 10 minutes of slambang grappling in the last encounter, both grippers fell from the ring and were counted out by Referee Miller.

Jack Smithers, Columbus, and Joe Wolfe, also of the Capital city, wrestled a 20-minute draw in the opening bout of the all-light heavy program.

HEDGES ADDS TO LEAD IN GRADE SCHOOL LOOP

HEDGES increased its lead in the Grade School league to three games at Senior high yesterday by dumping Newman, 12 to 1, while the runner-up Bowman club bowed to Carpenter, 13 to 9.

The youthful basketeers of the league leaders turned in a brilliant defensive play to limit their opponents to a free throw, scored by Gaubatz in the opening quarter. Hedges took a 9 to 1 lead at the half and increased it to a 12 to 1 advantage going into the final frame. The clubs failed to score in the last period. S. Moorhead led the winners with six points.

Carpenter hopped into the lead in the early minutes against Bowman and was never seriously threatened. Bowman held the winners scoreless in the last stanza while tallying six points, but was unable to overcome the big lead. Foster collected six points for Carpenter.

Prospect walloped West Fifth, 13 to 2. Woodland edged Bushnell, 9 to 4, and Brinkerhoff defeated Western, 12 to 10, in the other games.

Reports of so many residential burglaries make one feel uneasy about staying out for an evening. I have nothing of extraordinary value—just the usual silverware, jewelry, furs and house furnishings—still, I could not afford to lose them. City League Teams Swing Into Last Lap Wednesday

Offered Final Chance to Stop Yuncker Sports in Championship Race.

CITY Class A league teams swing into the home stretch of their championship season at Mansfield high school Wednesday night when they inaugurate the third and final round of play.

This round will determine whether the Yuncker Sports will make a clean sweep of the rounds to eliminate a play-off.

Sports Favored Again.

The crafty Sports won the first and second rounds without suffering defeat, and, naturally, are favored to add the third round title to their list of achievements.

One of the toughest tests confronting the Sports in this round will be tackled Wednesday.

Coach Jimmy Breres' hoopsters engage the Elks, one of the few teams in the circuit which has offered the Yuncker club any trouble.

If the Elks are able to stage an upset in their meeting this week, the lodgemen might go on to annex the championship to force a play-off.

The Sports pack more height and experience, but the Elks have speed on their side, which hardly offsets the Yuncker team's advantages, however.

Regardless of which team wins, the game should be one of the finest presented in the circuit this season.

Open Program.

The Sports and Elks are scheduled at 8 p. m., and the game will be preceded by a meeting between the Westinghouse and Mack's Pure Oil teams at 7 o'clock.

The Coach Vern Jones' Westies, the only other team accorded a chance to topple the Sports, are not expected to find the Oilmen extremely troublesome.

The plant team should go on to win this game to gain at least a temporary share of the league lead.

DOLLAR VALUE FOR BUILDING, REPAIRS SOARS

Many Materials Going into New House Cost 20 Per Cent Less, Dealer Says.

The person who builds or remodels a house today gets more value than ever before and his building dollar goes considerably farther than it did a few years ago, W. S. Ross, of the Home Materials Co., said here today in commenting on what he terms "unfounded and misleading statements" on construction costs.

The impression that building material costs are too high is a mistaken one, Ross declared. He cited a recent survey by Johns-Manville, building materials manufacturer, which showed that the price of building materials, fixtures and equipment averages 3.8 per cent less than in 1926 and many of the most important materials going into a new house or modernization job are from 20 to 25 per cent less, despite great improvement in quality in the last 12 years.

Held As Base Year.

He explained that 1926 is the year selected by the government as a goal since it best represents the normal, American standard of living.

Among the materials he listed as costing less today in this community are: yellow pine lumber, lath, window glass, asbestos roofing shingles, asphalt roofing, lime for plaster and mortar, brick, insulating board and hollow tile.

Another important factor is that financing costs, under the FHA type of amortized, single mortgage, are as much as 85 per cent less than during the boom days of 1925-29, he stated.

In reviewing the typical house of 1926, Ross declared that generally it was poorly designed with as much as one-fifth of its space wasted, and it took more money to maintain. Heating was non-automatic and there was no insulation, thus running up fuel bills in winter and causing the rooms to be hot and uncomfortable during the summer.

Kitchens, he pointed out, had none of the labor saving devices of today, there was usually only one bath, and plumbing was comparatively crude.

Waterproofing of Cellars Big Need In Many Houses

Before starting construction on a house the quality of the soil and its drainage should be studied thoroughly. A cellar that is not dry is of no use. A damp basement rusts the heating plant, destroys anything that is stored in it, and provides a breeding ground for insects.

If any trace of water is found or there is any indication that the drainage of the surrounding ground will be slow the cellar should be waterproofed. In places where drainage is fair, damp-proofing the walls might be sufficient.

In any case, the possibility of having to include waterproofing for the cellar should be considered in plans, specifications, and budget so that an unexpected condition may be met. Where there is a clay subsoil, subterranean pools are likely to form in certain spots, so that even though the surrounding property has been dry a bad condition might exist in a particular spot.

CHECK FLOORS THAT SQUEAK

Squeaking floors are often annoying and should be checked as soon as they develop. The exact places where the squeak occurs should be marked.

If the joists on which the floor is laid are exposed on the underside, it is possible to locate the squeaky areas from below. Where cracks occur between flooring and joists, small wedges driven between the subfloor and the joists will prevent further noise. It may be necessary to jack up and level any sagged or defective joist and then reinforce it with planks spiked to either side.

GIFTS OF PLUMBING

Plumbing and heating accessories, such as handsome chromium-plated faucets, shower baths, thermostats, shower curtains, closet seats and medicine cabinets are suitable as gifts.

HOMES

Materials And Supplies — Plans And Estimates

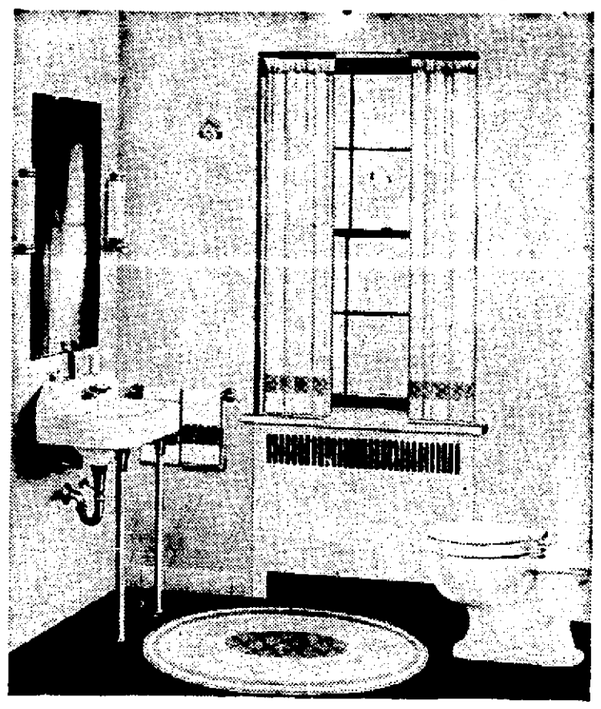
First Floor Washroom Popular



A washroom on the first floor has been recognized as an essential feature of the modern house. Often called the powder room, it is located where it will be easily accessible to guests. The room need not be large. A space 4 feet by 5 is large enough for the two fixtures. A closet corner or hall end can be converted into a useful downstairs washroom.

Building

Permits Issued In Past Week.

Building permits issued at city hall since Monday, Feb. 28, include:

A. G. Constant, theater North Park street, $100,000, Mar. 1; Charles Getz, residence 411 Davis road, $6,500; Charles Getz, garage 411 Davis road, $250; T. R. Sammons, billboard, 174 North Main street, Mar. 4.

FOR YOUNG MAN

A room decorated for a young man has walls of greyish green and woodwork of pale orange. The panels of the door match the wall color. On the dark oak floor is a rug of black, grey and red-orange. There are no draperies over the cream-colored curtains. The furniture is painted French grey with red-orange trimmings. An unbleached bedspread has bright, appliqued geometric figures on it.

SPACE NEEDED

Closet for Storage of Sports Equipment Found Ideal.

A large closet or small room dedicated to the storage of sports equipment is an asset to the household interested in sports and also effects a material saving, because the proper care of such equipment prevents deterioration.

Racks, hooks and pegs should be provided in the storage space to hold golf clubs, tennis rackets, hockey sticks, skates, etc. A series of stout wooden hooks, like old-fashioned hat racks, sloping down toward the wall make a good place to hold the golf clubs. Shoe shelves with grooves can be arranged for skates. Wooden pegs set in the wall hold tennis rackets without straining the frames or damaging the gut.

INVITING LIVING ROOM

A formal living room with an air of restrained elegance has white-painted walls surrounding a fine old mantel of pickled pine. Blue upholstery covers the chair and sofa and the same shade of blue is found in a pair of lamps. A white rug lends a dramatic touch and draperies of flowered cretonne hang at the window.

Matching Colors Are In Order of Day For Kitchen

Scrambled eggs are proper in kitchen utensils—but not scrambled colors—is the latest news to Mrs. America from the international home furnishings market at the merchandise mart.

Perfectly matched color ensembles for the kitchen in rich cream, medium blue, red, light green, and dark blue are catching the buyer's eye and will make their bow in stores when milady gets the urge to tear the house apart and do something different during spring cleaning.

Everything for the kitchen: pots, pans, ladders, chairs, tables, cabinets, refrigerators, canisters, brushes, cake and bread boxes, mixers, coffee pots, clocks—and even garbage cans—have donned the delightful soft hues of standardized colors.

WHEN FINISHING METAL

When refinishing brass or iron wash thoroughly with soap and water, then wipe over with dry cleaner solvent or benzine if no open fire is in the room where you are working. Then proceed with the application of the new coating as directed on the can.

CONCRETE
Gives Beauty, Comfort, Firesafety and Durability
Livable as well as lovely are concrete homes because they are warm and dry in winter—cool in summer. Their rigid strength banishes creaking, uneven floors, sticking doors and windows, sagging walls.
There's mental comfort in the knowledge that you and your family, as well as your dearly prized personal possessions and fine home equipment, are securely sheltered from storm and fire. Concrete doesn't burn or rust or decay. Termites can't eat it. Modern concrete construction adds only a few dollars to your monthly payments and those dollars come rolling back in lower upkeep and higher resale value. Often the first cost is no greater than for ordinary construction.

Market Suffers Another Setback

OFFERINGS DRY UP FOLLOWING BRISK OPENING

Overnight Selling Orders Hold Up List Before Prices Falter.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stocks suffered a further set-back in today's market, many leaders yielding fractions to a point or more.

Dealings were fairly active at the opening, aparently due to overnight selling orders. Offerings soon dried up, however, but there was little recovery in evidence near the second hour.

Bonds and commodities displayed mixed tendencies. The French franc broke to the lowest since 1926 in terms of the dollar.

Stunned By Suspension.

Aside from continuance of cloudy trade news generally, the financial district apparently was surprised by announcement of the suspension by the stock exchange of the member firm of Richard Whitney and company, for failure to meet its obligation. The market was down before the suspension and held moderately well following the news.

Boardroom analysts, searching for market trend clues, noted that February building permits indicated a spotty condition in construction projects.

The total value of permits in 44 cities was estimated to have shown a decline of almost 20 per cent from the 1937 level. An equal loss was registered in districts outside of New York for January, but an exceptionally large volume for the eastern metropolis put the total for the first month far ahead of the aggregate last year at the same time.

STILL WAITS FOR KIDNAP CONTACT

Levine On Mystery Auto Trips In Search For Son, 12.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.—(AP)—Convinced he has been in contact with kidnapers of his 12-year-old son, Murray Levine waited hopefully today for instructions for the payment of $30,000 ransom.

Levine, whose son, Peter, disappeared Feb. 21, declined to comment on conflicting reports that he had made a secret automobile trip yesterday.

Some persons said they saw him leave the house with two other men; others insisted he had not ventured outside.

HITLER HEARS HOOVER BLAST

Ex-President Flays Nazi Rule While Guest In Dictator's Office In Berlin.

discussion of the political outlook of Europe followed.

Hitler took occasion to reassert the entirely peaceful aims of the Nazi regime, while insisting upon Germany's right to full equality. It was during this stage of the conversations that Hoover reportedly voiced his own strong opinions about the chimerical nature of such political doctrines as Nazism.

Disclosure that Hoover clashed with the fuehrer on political grounds was regarded as of particular interest in view of the ex-president's attempts while in office to bring about a pacification of Europe's economic squabbles resulting from reparations and war debt payments.

Hoover was generally credited with formulation of the "gentlemen's agreement" of Lausanne which ended Germany's reparations payments, as a result of which the debtor nations promptly ceased their remittances to the United States.

Hoover was accompanied to the chancellery by Hugh R. Wilson, new United States ambassador to Berlin.

Following the meeting, Wilson entertained the ex-president and a group of distinguished guests at luncheon. Among those present were former Minister Baron Konstantin Von Neurath, Herr Wiedemann, Hitler's personal aide, the British, French and Polish ambassadors and several members of the German government.

The American colony is entertaining Hoover at a banquet tonight.

WOMAN AUTOIST SUED FOR $6,000

Pedestrian Says She Suffered Permanent Injuries.

Naming Mrs. Ruby Carnes, Mansfield, defendant, in a suit on file today in common pleas court, Miss Louise Pesano, Mansfield, asks $6,000 damages for injuries suffered in an accident here two years ago.

Miss Pesano states in her petition that she received permanent injuries to her left leg when she was knocked down by an automobile driven by Mrs. Carnes.

The accident, which occurred at East Sixth and Adams streets, Mar. 7, 1936, resulted in Miss Pesano being confined to a hospital for eight weeks, she contends.

It's Odd

But It's Science.

POSSUM POKE in Possum Lane, Poulan, Worth County, Ga.—(AP)—"They come out right now" is a Georgia saying for "pronto."

That. says Michigan's former governor, Chase S. Osborn, who also rates as a geologist, is how the fishing worms are caught at the vibration of a stick.

Osborn, woh lives in Georgia in winter, has given some study to this fish-worm technique. He was annoyed by a recent claim of a radio broadcaster that a Los Angeles man had "discovered" this trick.

"It is not new at all," said Osborn. "One man in Georgia got 86 in 15 minutes in a circular area about 20 feet in diameter.

"His method is to find the holes, indicated by little mounds of earth that the worms throw out. Then he drives a stake—called a 'stob' in the folk language of Georgia—about 12 or 13 inches into the ground. Next he takes a rock or rough piece of wood and rubs it against the stick or on the top.

"This shocks the earth delicately for a considerable distance. Whether the worms come out to see what it is all about, 'they come out right now.' "

More than 20 years ago the same stick vibrating method was publicized in Texas. Maybe some day paleontologists will find a fossil "stob" to show the cave men made the discovery.

NEW TYPE WINS CITY'S APPROVAL

Young and Old Find It Makes Reading Easier, Increases Paper's Legibility.

wider, making the print easier to follow with the eye.

Jesse Beer, principal of Mansfield High school—I am strongly in favor of the new type. It economizes in time, making it possible to read the paper much faster and with less eye strain.

Dr. Aram Tootikian, optometrist—The new type is a big improvement over the old, and enables a person to read the paper for a longer time without a bit of strain to the eyes. The type is also much better for children's eyes.

C. H. Huston, common pleas judge—I noticed the change immediately and liked it. The paper is much easier to read.

Mrs. Leopold Adams, housewife—The News-Journal looks like a metropolitan paper with its new type. Many of the larger newspapers have changed in recent years to this clean-cut type with more white space between the lines.

Dr. R. E. Kerr, optometrist—The new type face is 100 per cent better than the old and as the result makes the paper very easily read.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter—The News-Journal is to be complimented on the advancement they have made in procuring the new type face—it is a step in the right direction and certainly is noticeable when one reads the paper from cover to coyer.

Herman E. Homberger, postmaster—The new type is certainly an improvement, not only for its increased legibility, but in the general appearance of the paper. It gives it a clean-cut look that so few newspapers have.

Dr. M. D. Harnly, optometrist—The new type has a pleasing appearance to the eye. The improvement should be appreciated by those with ailing eyes, particularly the older persons.

Boyd F. Robinson, county superintendent of schools—I like The News-Journal's new make-up very much. It not only improves the appearance of the paper but makes reading more restful to the eyes and adds to the legibility of the paper.

Paul W. Williams, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce—The new type face makes a vast improvement in the general appearance of the paper and certainly makes reading easier. To adopt an expression from the advertising fraternity, the new type lets in more daylight between the lines therefore making for much easier reading.

Dr. D. N. Berris, optometrist—The new type face gives a better appearance to the newspaper and the fact that there is more space between the lines makes it much more easily read.

Dr. A. C. Butterfield, optometrist—I do think that the new type is much clearer than the old and from a visional standpoint the wider space between the lines will have a beneficial effect on the eyes

H. J. Dotson, principal of John Simpson Junior high school—I like the new type very much It is a distinct improvement over the old is much easier on the eyes, and also has improved the general appearance of the paper.

Dr. Paul Reel, optometrist — I think the paper has gone a long way in helping people who have abnormal sight with the reading of the paper. The letters in the new type are along the same line with which optometrists work. The new type will relieve the strain on the eyes.

Dr. Howard B. Peck, eye specialist—I compared the old type with the new and find it much clearer, and much easier to read, and like it much better than the old.

Dr. E. A. Smedal, eye specialist—The new type certainly makes a noticeable improvement in the paper and the fact that the lines are spaced farther apart will make it far easier to read with less work for the eyes.

Dr. H. L. Meckstroth, eye specialist—The new type is much easier on the eyes and the wider spacing will tend to conserve the eye energy and lessen the strain that is caused by closer spacing.

Dr. A. L. Engwiller, optometrist—It is an improvement which will mean a great deal to older persons and to those with impaired vision.

Dr. Alexander Turner, optometrist—The new type in The News-Journal is a big improvement, it is easy to see, and, naturally, should be easier on the eye.

GETS RELIEF

Woman Recovers From Hiccoughs After Delicate Operation.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill.— (INS) — Mrs. Deloss Funk breathed easy today for the first time in four days after doctors stopped a bad case of hiccoughs by making an incision in the left side of her neck and collapsing the left side of the diaphragm through pinching the left phrenic nerve. Mrs Funk had been hiccoughing at the rate of 47 per minute.

BUY A MODERN CAR NOW—WHILE YOU HAVE MORE TO TRADE AND LESS TO PAY

SEE ANY CAR DEALER DISPLAYING THIS SIGN

Get there early while the choice is wide—fine cars now offered at rock-bottom prices

A few days ago nobody had ever heard of National Used Car Exchange Week. Today the news is in hundreds of thousands of homes throughout the country, and many excited "family buying councils" are under way. No wonder! The American public has never had such an opportunity to OWN A BETTER CAR for a remarkably small investment.

What's your first question? Can I afford to buy now? If you've been putting up with an old unreliable car, you can't afford NOT to buy now!

Spring is just around the corner—automobile dealers co-operating in this great nation-wide sale have an unusually fine selection of good used cars—and prices are far below those of several months ago. Look at the classified pages of this paper for proof. Visit the used car lot or showroom of any authorized car dealer displaying this sign and see the exceptional bargains on display.

Many are 1937, '36 and '35 models—backed by the finest of dealer guarantees. All have thousands of miles of first-class unused transportation in them.

And the "first-class" transportation of these modern cars represents satisfaction which the owners of older cars can hardly imagine. Beautiful, modern styling—a more comfortable ride—more room for you and your luggage—finer, more powerful engines—better gas mileage—better brakes—bigger tires—dozens of improvements introduced since your old car was built.

Stack up your old car—with its prospect of repair bills and decreasing trade-in value—against the joy of owning a modern car like this. Now's the time to make the switch, while you have more to trade and less to pay. Your present car may cover the down-payment—balance on easy terms. If you have no car to trade, you can still take advantage of the low down-payments and easy terms during this sale. Buy early while the selection is the widest and the best.

ACT TO RECTIFY DIFFICULTIES AT SEWAGE PLANT

Pump Company Workers Install Equipment in Effort To Halt Clogging.

Steps towards rectifying mechanical difficulties at the city's sewage treatment plant which has been the target of criticism in the past few months, were under way today.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter said that two new improved impellors had been received by the city and that representatives of the Chicago Pump company were at the plant today installing the equipment that is designed to eliminate the clogging of two pumps in the primary sewage line.

Hunter said he had been informed by Ralph Carter, sent here by the Chicago firm, that the impellors were of a new improved type and should halt the clogging of raw sewage in the pumps.

Plan Check of Motors.

On the completion of the installation, the mayor added that Westinghouse engineers had agreed to run a power test on the motors for the pumps to check for an overload. If it is found that the motors are overloaded, he said it is understood that the contractor would supply larger motors on the pumps at no expense to the city.

Meanwhile Hunter announced that the final payment on the plant which amounts to $6,089 and which was due Feb. 2, would be withheld until the equipment is approved by the designing engineer, George Sowers of Cleveland.

The Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Devotion

By DR. WILLARD L. SPERRY

Tuesday, March 8. "Can there any good thing come out of Nazareth?" Read John 1:34-51.

Jesus came from Nazareth. That of itself was reason enough why he could not be the Messiah. Nazareth was an undistinguished town in the provinces, and furthermore, was not the spot which prophecy had foretold.

We all of us have our advance theories as to the most likely times and places for revelations of the divine. But God is always challenging and outwitting us by manifesting himself in unexpected places and unconventional ways.

It takes no little humility and generosity to admit that the divine may reveal itself through churches, races, creeds other than our own; but unless we are to miss many a revelation, we must be prepared for such an event. Jesus, when he appeared for his ministry, had come from an improbable and unanticipated town. So John Ruskin once said, with Jacob's dream in mind, "This any place where God lets down the ladder." And Francis Thompson went on to describe that ladder as "pitched betwixt Heaven and Charing Cross."

Prayer: Almighty God, who knowest thine own times and seasons, and dost reveal thyself to men where they least expect, give us, as we wait thy comings, the ready expectancy of open and humble minds. Amen.

8 PER CENT GAIN SHOW IN FARM CASH FOR YEAR

Seventh of Total Agriculture Income Goes to California, Texas, Bureau Says.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—California and Texas farmers, combined, produced nearly 15 per cent of the nation's agricultural income last year, according to department of agriculture reports.

California farmers had the highest income, $586,921,000, followed by Texans with $498,809,000. The total for all states, exclusive of government benefit payments, was $8,154 000,000.

An increase of 8 per cent in cash farm income last year was due, the department said, to larger receipts from crops and to an $80,000,000 increase over 1936 in government benefit payments.

Income Up Half Billion.

Income from the sale of crops and livestock increased $521,000,000 over the $7,633,000,000 received from the same source in 1936. Government benefit payments, meanwhile, increased from $287 000,000 in 1936 to $367,000,000 in 1937.

Farmers received a cash income of $3,882,000,000 from crops and $4,272,000,000 from sale of livestock products last year. In 1936 the cash income from these sources was $3,462,000,000 from crops and $4,171,000,000 from livestock products.

Five of the six major geographical sections of the country participated in income gains over 1936. The northwest central states—Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas—showed a 1 per cent decline.

A 28 per cent increase in receipts from crops in that section was more than offset by an 8 per cent decrease in receipts from livestock products. South Dakota income declined 11 per cent; Iowa, 9 per cent, and Nebraska, 8, exclusive of government payments.

Only four other states showed a decline in farm income last year. They were: Louisiana, 2 per cent; Missouri, 5; Mississippi, 13; Georgia, 6, and South Carolina, 4 per cent.

A Little Gorilla For Your Home

Mrs. Osa Johnson, who has made many friends among wild animals in her exploration trips in the jungles with her late husband, is shown above with a gorilla, which comes from the largest and supposedly most ferocious family of the apes. Mrs. Johnson will give an illustrated lecture Friday evening at the high school auditorium under the auspices of the University club.

MOVIES DEPICT LIFE IN JUNGLES

Mrs. Johnson to Illustrate Lecture at High School Auditorium Friday.

An exciting word and film picture of the adventures of the Martin Johnsons in Africa, Borneo and other out-of-the-way countries will be presented personally by Mrs. Johnson Friday afternoon and evening at Mansfield High school auditorium.

Mrs. Johnson will present her lecture, "Jungles Calling," under the auspices of the University club's educational committee. Her talk, which will be illuminated with moving pictures taken in the wilds, will include the highlights of 20 years of travel and picture-hunting in far-off places.

Now completely recovered from serious injuries suffered more than a year ago in a plane crash in California, Mrs. Johnson is on her second lecture tour of the nation, continuing the work of her late husband who died in the same accident.

The pictures to be shown by Mrs. Johnson will depict the life of the wildest beasts of Africa and Borneo in their native haunts, and the methods used by the Johnsons to photograph them.

Author of several books and magazine articles on her experiences as an explorer, Mrs. Johnson will tell of escapes from death while hundreds of miles from civilization. An accomplished entertainer and mimic, she will give imitations of the better known animals of Africa and the South Sea islands.

Tickets for the lectures are available at Tawse's pharmacy, Bates' candy shop or from any University club member. Student tickets can be obtained in the schools.

Infant Can Still Call Father Uncle And Be Correct

LONDON—(U.P.)—William Robb, of Kelty, Fife, is his own cousin. His father is also his uncle and his mother is his aunt.

William does not know all this, because he is only a few days old, but he has a strange family puzzle he will have to solve later.

It started when a Kelty man, Alex Fotheringham, a widower with a family, married Mrs. Robb, a widow, also having a family. Then Mrs. Robb's son William (baby Williams's father) married Fotheringham's daughter Agnes and Fotheringham's son Andrew married Mrs. Robb's daughter Bessie.

Alex Fotheringham, jr., was born to find himself the half-brother to all the other members of the family and brother-in-law to two of them. He is at the same time uncle on both sides of the family to the four children of Mr. and Mrs. William Robb.

Alex's father is, of course, father, stepfather and father-in-law to various members of the family, besides being a grandfather.

SENIOR HIGH TO ENTER BAND IN DISTRICT EVENT

72-Piece Unit to Complete at Bluffton, March 18; Winner Goes to State Contest.

The Mansfield high school band will participate in a contest for the first time in six years March 18 when the school musicians compete in the Northwestern District Class A high school band contest at Bluffton college, J. Merton Holcombe, director, announced today.

Bands from Class A schools in this section of the state will participate with the winner representing the district at the state contest at Columbus in April.

Winning bands from six districts will compete in the state contest, the champion going to the national high school event in June.

Will Play 2 Numbers.

At the district contest each band will play two selections, one required and the other selected from a list of overtures. The required number is "Slavonic Rhapsody." The other selection chosen by the Mansfield unit is "Beatrice and Benedict." The band's selected number is the required number in the national contest.

The contest band will be made up of 72 students, Holcombe said, who have already been selected. Rehearsals this week are scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday evenings, and Friday morning and evening, and Saturday morning and evening.

This is the first year the high school band has returned in a contest since 1932 when the group went to the state competition at Portsmouth.

Prior to he Portsmouth contest, the school was represented in the state contest for eight years, entering the first state contest held in Ohio.

ACCEPTS BIDS

City Awards Sanitary Sewer Job to Darling and Sons.

The city board of control today had accepted the lowest of two bids for the laying of a sanitary sewer between Andover road and Yale drive, Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert announced.

The city awarded the contract to R. O. Darling and Sons company on their bid of $1,010.40, which was less than half the amount of the bid submitted by Mike Fatol of Cleveland whose offer was $2,219.20.

The contract was let yesterday by the board which consists of Mayor Claude M. Hunter and Styert.

Specifications call for the construction of 736 feet of eight-inch sanitary sewer in an easement between Andover road and Yale drive from Stewart lane to inlot number 10505.

Co-eds Are Now Taught How To Rear Youngsters

SEATTLE, Wash.—(INS)—The rearing of children is recognized by the University of Washington as one of the most exacting of undertakings. And here each quarter approximately 50 senior co-eds, many of whom will be mothers themselves some day, are learning scientific methods of child care and development.

Four times a week they attend lectures by Dr. Jennie L. Rountree, professor of home economics, and on Fridays little boys and girls ranging in age from one month to eight years are brought to class by Seattle mothers and are submitted to the undergraduate child care experts.

The youngsters are carefully weighed and measured, their individual histories are recorded, and the mothers are advised on types of clothing, playthings and books best suited for each particular child.

Then they are taken to Lewis hall on the campus where a special play room is provided.

SOCIAL ERROR

Theft Suspect Asks Policeman to Call Get-Away Cab.

BOSTON—(INS)—Don't ask a policeman to call a cab when you're leaving a cafe with two stolen overcoats over your arm.

Carrying two overcoats as he ran from a downtown cafe, a man who gave his name as Roland F. Forest, of the South End, called to special Officer Joseph McCleary, "Hey, buddy, get me a taxicab quick!"

He was booked on suspicion of larceny at police headquartere after two patrons identified the coats as theirs.

Get at the Cause of Constipation!

You know that constipation often gives you that dopey, sunken, bogged down feeling. Why not get at the cause and fix it?

If you eat what most people do—things like bread, meat and potatoes—the chances are all that's the matter with you is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean what you may think. It's a kind of food that isn't entirely digested, but leaves a soft, bulky mass in the intestines that aids elimination.

If this is your trouble, what you need is a dish of crisp, crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. It contains the "bulk" you need, plus Nature's intestinal tonic vitamin B$_1$, and iron.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and see if the old world doesn't look a lot brighter! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

GETS 1 TO 20 YEARS IN PEN FOR STARTING FIRE IN SHELBY JAIL

Found guilty of starting a fire which damaged the Shelby jail last October, Hiram Littleton, 39, Shelby, was sentenced to one to 20 years in the Ohio penitentiary yesterday afternoon by Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston.

A jury of four women and eight men returned a verdict of guilty against Littleton on an indictment for arson after about 30 minutes deliberation. Frank B. Hersh was foreman of the jury.

During the trial which opened yesterday morning, eight witnesses testified. They included O. M. McClure, assistant state fire marshal; Chief of Police Coffey of Shelby; Eugene Shull, Shelby fire chief, and two members of the Shelby police department.

Littleton, who served a federal prison sentence 17 years ago for transporting stolen property between states, said he was intoxicated when he ignited paper which he stuffed in a hole in the wall of the Shelby jail. He was being held for intoxication at the time of the fire.

Atty. George Blecker defended Littleton at the trial which was the first involving an arson charge in the county for more than a year

CHAPTER XII

At their table abruptly appeared two men in police uniforms, pistols in hand. One gun covered Murray, the other Jose.

"You are both under arrest," announced one of the men. "Hands in front of you, and go ahead."

"But—but—" began Murray.

The policeman nearest him raised his pistol as though to slash him across the face with it.

"No talk. Get along," he snarled, and jerked Murray from his chair.

Jose was already on his feet.

"I theenk, Don Murray—" he began, but did not finish. His captor poked him roughly in the back with his gun

Murray Kilbourne was not worried.

Either the arrest was a mistake or Red Vasquez had made some sort of complaint. In either case, the police were responsible authorities. Explanations, in case the arrest was an error, would free them instantly. And Murray did not believe that even Red Vasquez and the entire underworld of Tijuana could suborn the Mexican police; their reputation was too fine

They would go unresistingly to the big square cuartel, and there things would be quickly cleared up.

Few people saw them go; it was quickly and quietly done

The jail building was only two squares from the cafe, hence Murray was somewhat surprised when they were led less than half a block and stopped in front of a closed car, its engine running, a man in the driver's seat.

"Get inside," roughly commanded one of the policemen, opening the door but never taking his gun from against Murray's back.

Odd, thought the American. Still, it was police business. He climbed in, and Jose after him. The two policemen entered. The car started up.

At the next corner it had to turn right to reach the cuartel.

This it did, but with surprising results.

One of the policemen leaned over in the dark car toward the driver and said: "Where are you going, fool? South' South'"

The driver nodded and muttered something. Murray noted then that his face was covered, except for the eyes, with a bandanna handkerchief, such as the Mexicans wear when they have a cold.

They came to the front of the jail, where several policemen were loitering, smoking, talking.

"Step on it!" commanded one of the uniformed men in the car "Get past!"

Murray was nearly thrown from his seat as the driver whirled the car across the street to the curb before the cuartel, brought it to a sudden stop, tore the keys from the ignition switch, and opened the door beside him.

And then he was amazed to see the two policemen open the other door, tumble out, and start running for the darkness across the street.

The driver shouted something to the officers at the cuartel.

One of them pulled his pistol and shot at the fleeing uniformed men. Two others joined in his shooting. Then three of them set off running. But uselessly. Murray could see: the two men who had captured him and Jose were gone in the darkness.

"Well," he said to Jose, "I will be damned! That's a funny one."

"Sure, Don Murray," replied Jose. "That ees one damn funnee one. You know w'at I theenk? I theenk somebody make suckers with us. I theenk those two fellers she ain't no policemen, but two guys w'at wear thee policeman's clothes, w'at?"

"You said it, Jose," said Murray "And I theenk that they theenk they take us for—w'at you say?—thee ride. One ride where we never come back from, huh? And I theenk that Red Vasquez pay for thee gas, by damn."

"I wouldn't be surprised," said Murray. "But—but why did the driver bring us here? Where is he?" He looked around.

"That driver, Don Murray, he beat eet like holee hell." Jose laughed. "He go like thee jackrabbit when a dog chase her. But before he start, Don Murray, hees handkerchief eet fall down from hees face. You know who that feller she ees, Don Murray? Well, I weel tell you That feller was the same one who was seenging the 'La Paloma' to us before we went to thee cafe. That feller who warn you Pablo Sanchez.

"But it doesn't make sense, Jose," objected Murray. "Pablo might have warned us, all right, at somebody's request, but how the devil would he be driving a car for Red Vasquez and his thugs?"

"No, she don't make thee sense," assented Jose. "But I theenk—you know w'at I theenk, Don Murray? I theenk that maybe pretty dam queek somebody she find one feller all tied up nice in some dark alley, huh?"

"You mean that Pablo—"

"Yes, that w'at I theenk. I theenk Pablo hijack thee other driver of thees car and put heem away some'ere so that he could drive thee car. So he drive to thee cuartal instead of to the heels w'ere we was going to get keeled veree, veree dead, I theenk."

"Whew! Looks like you're right. Close shave, Jose. They had us right, huh?"

"By damn, yes, Don Murray. They had us. I theenk they were police, so I was not scare. But I am scare now, Don Murray. I am so scare as I don' know w'at. I am so scare I remember bad things I have done w'ich I have not theenk about for ten year. She was w'at you say, one shave too close"

"Well, we have to thank Pablo, whoever he is," said Murray. "I don't understand his interest in us, but I am exceedingly grateful to him"

"Me, too" agreed Jose. "I am mos' grateful. Eef he was here I would kees heem. But he ees not here to kees, so I theenk I go kees thee widow Don Murray Maybe she make my scare go 'way, huh?"

"I'll join you Jose," said Don Murray. "I could stand a drink too. And then we will have to come back and explain to the police captain what happened"

And while these affairs were taking place in Tijuana, life at Rancho La Luz was proceeding with its customary slow speed and comfort.

Don Vincente rode about his broad acres like a feudal baron—one of the last of the caballeros—and listened to the griefs and happiness of his many "children." Usually in the company of the senorita Mercedes; frequently accompanied by Don Ponce Robles, sometimes with both

In the first instance, Don Vincente and his daughter were apt to speak more of Don Murray Kilbourne and his affairs than of anything else.

In the second instance, the old caballero turned an attentive ear to the suggestions of Don Ponce concerning the probabilities of oil on Rancho La Luz—a possibility which interested him very little indeed; he shuddered at the thought of an oil derrick on the rancho's bosom—and that ear was delicate enough to catch, beneath the business words; something which sounded very much like an intimation that Don Ponce Robles was about to become a suitor for the hand of the senorita Mercedes. And for some reason or other this appealed to Don Vincente even less than the oil derricks. But he was well aware that Mercedes could take care of herself. Which is to say, that it would be a bright boy who could put anything over on her.

And in the third instance, when both the seniorita and Don Ponce accompanied him on his journeyings, Don Vincente was usually silent, while the two younger folks talked of matters which left him cold, of Hollywood and movie stars, of radio and radio celebrities, of San Diego and Los Angeles and Mexicali, of shops and their fashions.

At these times was Mercedes most gracious to the don, and even Don Vincente had to admit that his guest lacked nothing in social charm and manners. And at these times, too, Don Vincente was apt to think—quite to himself—that it was peculiar how a young man could make such an attractive friend without at the same time seeming to have any of the qualifications of a good son-in-law. And then he would recollect that Don Ponce was not the first, nor the tenth young man who had come riding to the gates of Rancho La Luz to pay his respects to the master thereof while he made mimosa glances at the master's daughter.

What this daughter now really thought of Don Ponce Robles he did not know and could not guess. But he was forced to admit that the situation seemed a bit more serious than in the cases of the other young men, and this perturbed him because in his mind there had never been but one possible husband for Mercedes Torres That husband was Don Murray Kilbourne

In the past there had never been any doubt as to where Mercedes stood—a fact which had made him worriless concerning the Many Young Men. With them his daughter had flirted outrageously, but with laughter in her eyes, which told them plainly she was only playing and that she expected them to play, too. With the result that eventually they went to look for other senoritas, swearing that Mercedes was the most charming girl in Mexico.

But Don Vincente had noted that with Murray Kilbourne she did not play this game . . . or at least had never done so until his last two visits.

And he noted, too, that she did not play the game with Don Ponce Robles.

These two facts bothered him.

Japan is building fast motorships called "silk express boats" for the American trade. That is all right, it Americans continue buying silk.

As for those Russian trials and executions, it's hard to tell whether Russia is being saved or ruined by its firing squads, but it doesn't seem likely that any nation can benefit in the long run by killing its brightest men.

A City Mourns.

THE POET who said that "one touch of nature makes the whole world kin" might well have changed it to one touch of sympathy.

Mansfield, once a little town in which everyone knew most of the citizenry and felt a neighborly interest in the affairs of it, has outgrown that "small town" neighborliness in the rush of modern years and a changing population.

But today Mansfield has the "small town" heart and understanding in its common sympathy for one of its own families that has been stricken as few families ever are.

It is doubtful if there is a single person in Mansfield today whose heart and sympathy does not go out to members of the Dirlam family; to the wife and mother who has gone through the distracting strain of caring for a husband in a fatal illness of a week—the same week in which she waited in vain for some word of the safety of her two oldest children. While she watched her husband fight vainly for his life, she had to keep from him the news that a tragic airplane accident may have cost the lives of their son and daughter.

Mere words seem futile in such a tragedy as this—yet all Mansfield, if it could, would join with the closest friends of the Dirlam family in expressing its most sincere sympathy to them today, as a father and husband is buried. And it joins as well in hoping that a miracle may come to pass across a continent that will restore to the family the two children who gave never a thought to hazard in their hurry to be with their father in his last days.

A Sultan Comes.

A PLEASANT little diversion in the Washington scene was the coming, last week, of the Sultan of Muscat and Oman. Most of us haven't realized that there was such a potentate, and are hazy as to the whereabouts and reality of Muscat and Oman, which is or are supposed to be somewhere on the Arabian peninsula. But there is nothing imaginary about the Sultan.

He arrived in state, slept in his Pullman car in the Union station, then at 10 in the morning was met by representatives of the state department headed by Secretary Hull. He was borne in state through the streets of the capital, escorted by a troop of cavalry and an army band playing his national anthem. The parade "tied up traffic and filled the air with oriental perfume." Then he lunched in state at the White House.

It was a grand reunion for the American diplomats who had dined with him four years ago in his Arabian palace, on a whole baked sheep, while slaves in gorgeous robes bathed their faces and hands in rose water.

The Sultan of M. and O. seems to have had a good time, but doesn't really belong in Washington. He should go to Hollywood. He would like it, and Hollywood would like it, and on a few hours' notice they could make him feel at home on any location.

Collecting On Bad Debts.

A PRIVATE creditor, in similar circumstances, would be interested in such a proposal as Hungary's for the partial payment of a debt long considered incollectible.

The little state of Hungary, newly separated from the Austrian empire after the World war, was threatened with famine. Our government advanced it enough credit to purchase $1,685,835 worth of flour. That principal and the accrued interest amounted to $1,939,000 in 1924 when the debt was funded. During the next six years Hungary managed somehow to pay us $500,000 on account. Of course, most of the amount was credited to interest and less than one-fifth to reduction of principal. Private debtors understand about that, and sympathize.

What Hungary asked recently was revision of the terms of payment, recrediting that $500,000 to principal and permitting the balance of the original principal to be paid in yearly installments over a period of 30 years.

It looks like a wonderful bargain for the debtor and a grand loss for the creditor, but it would be a million or so more dollars than we used to expect. Such a settlement might set an example, profitable for us, to the foreign debtors who owe us billions.

Traffic Planning.

THE automobile has done two things to marketing customs, both temporarily disturbing. First it took a lot of buying away from the small town and centered it in cities. That was hard on merchants in the towns and rural districts. They saw much of their former trade speed past their doors on the fine pavements and rubber tires of the motor era.

The situation was not wholly good for the big centers. It created new problems. Traffic congestion became so great that everything was slowed down and finally people sought to avoid it by going to outlaying markets once more That situation was largely responsible for the development of branch banking. Customers found it too difficult to reach the central banks by automobile.

There is still an acute problem of traffic congestion in the business districts of large cities. As a result, says the director of the Bureau of Street Research in New York, fundamental changes in marketing and trade activities will be forced in the near future. Whether they will be planned, or will be allowed to "just grow" with the waste that process usually entails, remains to be seen.

Some large concerns today are studying traffic-flow maps to determine the location of their own new retail outlets. Past experience is no longer a safe guide. City planners, road designers and small town business groups should get together over those same maps.

People who never liked bridge, anyway, say if it were a really good game the rules wouldn't be changed so often, and nobody would want to add a fifth suit.

Keeping Step

By LESLIE EICHEL

WHIPPING BY LAW of men does not meet with whole-hearted approval in America. Comments to this column indicate that.

"Are we slipping back to the dark ages?" one woman says. "Let Russia or Germany see that picture of the man being whipped in a Baltimore jail for beating his wife—and they well may exclaim, 'So, this is civilized America, who criticizes us!" How can one human being torture another one so? And how will that reform men or change human nature or the basic conditions that breed crime? And what purpose will the picture of the man being whipped serve except to indulge sadistic appetites?"

WE LAG

Our punishment for crime — which does not reform but actually turns men into forlorn brutes —still is a black spot.

We advance in science but we still have penal systems that mock every scientific and social advance that we have made in hundreds of years.

Perhaps in the years to come we shall look back upon the judges and the sheriffs and the wardens with a shudder, perhaps even unbelieving that they could have existed. We shall look back as we now look back on the days of the inquisition and the burning of "witches".

HOUSING

Much of the crime that stalks us now is due to our own neglect. Tenements and hovels, in city and country, increase year by year. Children reared in such environments are potential criminals.

The government now has a housing act, you will say. Yes, but it is not automatic, and even if it were, it is but a drop in the bucket.

Building contracts in January were down 60.4 per cent from the recovery peak, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute. This organization adds, "Declining rents and high costs continue to block revival."

And how will a housing act help if potential house builders are fearful, because of job insecurity, of assuming any obligation at all?

Socialization of housing may be forced on the government. Yet even that would not meet the needs of the masses unless their own industries likewise were operated for their benefit.

FEAR

Much has been said of the fear of business and of money.

But suppose all fear were removed from business and money would be ready to pour into it.

Would there be the slightest improvement if the masses did not buy? All industries are based on mass purchases.

It is the fear of the mass that prevents any upward movement in business. And the fear of the mass is based upon a very tangible thing—insecurity or downright inability to get ahead sufficiently to buy.

DEFICIT

One thing is certain:

There will be higher income taxes next year—especially for the man in middle brackets.

The government is spending more, taking in less than had been estimated—due to changed business conditions.

"Federal budget facing another revision," headlines the Alexander Hamilton Institute.

"Despite four attempts to estimate it, deficit is still at too low a figure. Revised budget will show that government will continue its former policy of contributing to inflation. This year's original budget, which now has been abandoned, indicated a deflationary policy."

The institute adds:

"Whether the government's return to its former inflationary policy will prove effective in causing a resumption of the general inflationary movement is open to question. At the present time, other factors in the situation are making for deflation and conditions are consequently different now than in 1933 when the effect of the government's inflationary measures was augmented by other economic forces headed in the same direction."

How Far Shall We Let the 'Bund' Idea Progress?

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Herr Hitler's order prohibiting German citizens, resident or sojourning in the United States, from belonging to organizations like the Amerika-Deutsche Volksbund or German-American Bund is all right, of course.

While they are here the reichsfuehrer has no authority over them. Supposing that they disregard his ukase, he can't penalize them immediately, but his notice is to the effect that he will not take their part if they make themselves objectionable to Uncle Sam's officials and are, for example, deported. And, if they are deported—sent back to Germany—he can make it mightily unpleasant for them when they get there.

There is nothing empty, therefore, in his warning to Germans, in this country only as visitors, to keep out of Yankee politics.

I would not have thought that we have 400,000 unnaturalized Germans in our midst, as estimated, but the principle stands, regardless of their exact number.

However, Hitler cannot dictate to Americanly naturalized Germans, or to Americans of German descent, by one or two generations. Perhaps, indeed, we might cancel a naturalized German's American citizenship and ship him back to the Fatherland, but we could not do so in the case of a so-called German-American who was born here—and maybe his father and grandfather also.

And quite a few of these descendants appear to be Bund members. It is necessary to consider them locally.

Now, is it permissible to tell these folk — Americans of long standing, like the rest of us—that they cannot advocate Nazi-ism, as generally desirable politically and economically?

I do not like their doctrine.

I do not like Fascism or Communism or miscellaneous Socialism.

But I would not say that a Nazi, a Communist, a Fascist or the advocate of any other sort of an "ism" should be forbidden to preach his own "dope", so long as he goes no farther than to advocate it.

* * *

Yet we have had a superior court judge at Gary, Ind., recently issuing an injunction against the Volksbund from soliciting members, holding meetings, hiring halls, from vilifying races or from attacking principles of the United States constitution.

To be sure, it was only a temporary injunction.

Nevertheless, it struck me as queer Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence.

My motto would be, "Let 'em agitate indefinitely."

California has a crazy law against "criminal syndicalism". (So has Michigan.)

Former Congressman Arthur Free of California had a notion that the District of Columbia should have a similar law.

I wondered why Washington should have such legislation, considering that Washington practically has no industries. I asked Congressman Free about it.

"True," he agreed, "Washington is without industries, but it is a center of propaganda."

"But," I asked, "would you punish a man for what he merely thinks?"

"As a lawyer," answered Free, "I'd say you must have some evidence to show what he thinks—something that he has said or printed. But it is for what he THINKS that he is being called to account."

As a criminal test, "What do you THINK!" How do you like that?

Listen, World!

Pope Pius XI . . . He Marches On.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

IT'S a tough job to keep your head these days, even under the simplest circumstances—

It's a practically impossible job to remain cool and collected . . . truly "master of your soul", in the face of external shock and turmoil—mental anguish, physical agony and spiritual travail. Body and spirit stretched, ceaselessly, on the rock, day after day—month after month—how many could come through that test without flinching!

Yet one man is doing so. A very old man, at that. Also, a very powerful man, who has every excuse for faltering without shame, every opportunity to play the weakling, knowing his surrender would be masked from every eye. Even so, this heroic old man holds on . . . indomitable against agony which would have crushed a million lesser spirits . . . and, by his courage, shames and heartens the whole world.

And whether you be Protestant, as I am, or Catholic, Atheist, Mohammedan or Jew, there can be but one reaction as you view this amazing spectacle—

TO POPE PIUS XI—GREAT PHILOSOPHER, BATTLING WARRIOR AND GALLANT SAINT—SALUTE!

And, following that salute, a desire to know more of this fabulous figure. Front pages tell much . . . those intermittent daily bulletins of the fight with pain which read like battle front flashes . . . and, between the sieges, those magnificent protests against our modern viciousness and vulgarity . . . those passionate, heart-broken pleas for Christian charity.

This, from the newspapers. But now comes a more intimate document revealing infinitely more—THOMAS B. MORGAN'S new book entitled "A REPORTER AT THE PAPAL COURT . . . . A Narrative of the Reign of Pope Pius XI." (Longmans, Green & Co., publishers).

Does pageantry "do things" to you? Do you quiver and quicken to the leaping cry of the trumpets . . . the long, rolling thunder of the drums . . . the deep, throbbing carillon of bells? Do you drink in the intoxication of gemmed color . . . topaz and garnet, turquoise and jade, ebony, amythst and pearl . . . massed against a vaulting, sapphire sky?

Then here it all is, waiting for you in this book, set down in all the intricate and complicated ritual of the world's most mysterious city.

As though they stepped straight from some medieval tapestry they move—these haughty guards and cardinals, monks and diplomats, in their stiff and jewelled magnificence. Treasures incredible . . . velvets crusted with gold broidery, studded with diamonds . . . vestments, laces, delicate as silver webs . . . marching, massed, behind blue veils of incense and the chant of singing boys—

The most moving and dramatic sight left on earth . . . the proudest and most flaming splendor.

But, behind and above it all, something that dulls the splendor and belittles the pageantry . . . a man—one old, worn man, whose spirit is the tempered, flashing steel in this jewelled scabbard—Pope Pius—the Friend of God!

A man whose wealth and subtle power passes the might of kings—yet who lives with the simplicity of the commonest peasant. A man, scientist, politician and philosopher, with a brain second to none on earth—who still seeks wisdom as humbly as any child. A man who might command every luxury on earth—who still submits racked body and soul to the harshest and most constant discipline mortal flesh can endure.

Discipline . . . grim endurance of inhuman strain . . . how seldom we see it in this machine served age! And how badly we need it! The pallet of a peasant . . . the routine of a day laborer . . . the simple, rough fare of a soldier in the trench, in the midst of all that magnificence . . . old Pope Pius marches on. In his youth he was one of the greatest mountain climbers on earth. Still he climbs . . . the lonely peaks of pain . . . the far-flung ranges of the questing soil.

And so he will serve to the end. Such an agonizing end! So often, lately, like that Other, he must have cried, "Let this cup pass! My Father! LET IT PASS!" . . . Then, presently, in wrung and whispered gasps, "But if it may not pass — THY WILL BE DONE!"

"Thy Will Be Done!" There, in the Vatican's walled glory, His will is being done, with such high faith, such courage and humility as this sad world will see not soon again!

And for our sick and shamed, embittered souls, I know no better medicine than this close glimse of one old man who might have every privilege of a conquering czar . . . yet chooses, still, to tread the weary trail and share the bloody thorns which crowned his Lord.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

LOS ANGELES—About a year ago the Ohio river climbed out of its channel, spread over the neighborhood country and brought the Army, the Red Cross, the National Guard and the Naval Reserves rushing to the rescue.

Boats were shipped in from Maine, Chesapeake Bay and Chicago. The local manpower was mobilized for labor and the whole nation aroused itself over a dramatic disaster.

Pegler

There was a somewhat similar mishap in this region last Thursday. Following heavy rains, the local streams, some of which were dry beds at certain times of the year, began to rip and slash along their courses. Wednesday morning word began to spread that a flood was forming, and by noon at the Santa Fe station the Chief, the fast, nickel-plated train from the east, was posted as indefinitely late.

The Chief was only a few miles out of town, but was stalled at a bridge while railroad engineers walked out to inspect the supports. The Chief never got across, for the bridge was carried away in sight of passengers and the train was slowly and carefully rerouted over the Southern Pacific tracks for a short journey which took four hours.

DISASTER IN THE HINTERLAND

By Thursday morning a disaster had struck in some vague hinterland described as "back there," and at this writing the blow is something of yesterday, which happened somewhere else. The sun is shining, the streets of Los Angeles and Hollywood are dry, the actors, with smear on their faces and lace on their sleeves, are sparking the gal and storming the moat.

The wallop fell, the dead are being gathered up, the papers are printing pictures of the havoc, but the work of the relief, which is being handled by local talent, the Red Cross, the American Legion and the Salvation Army, may be much greater on the far side of the mountains than it is here.

In loss of life this flood may outscore the one in the Ohio valley last winter, for the people there had warning and the danger of disease was so well advertised that doctors with hypodermics were as common as militiamen with the conventional bayonet.

Here the rain washed down the hills in a sudden torrent over ground too wet to absorb any more, and the damage was done before the community as a whole could appreciate the seriousness of the case.

ROUTINE OF LIFE UNINTERRUPTED

It is a strange experience to be in a city cut off from the outside by the destruction of great works and surrounded by ruin and tragedy, yet unperturbed and uninterrupted in the routine of life and the ordinary interests. Indifference may not be the word, for that suggests a heartless disinterest in misfortune.

The horses ran in the rain at Santa Anita while the flood was taking life and the radio was chattering incoherent bulletins in a tone which was intended to be merely non-alarmist, but overemphasized optimism to a misleading degree.

Where I have been there was no shortage of food, water or liquor, no pause of professional or personal rivalry, no sight of sentries or men in sodden clothes heaving sandbags on the main streets, and even now the flood, to many who were neighbors to it, is only something of which they read in the papers.

The explanation lies partly in the abruptness and brevity of the blow, which was over and done before it could be talked up in the mass imagination. But another element is the guest or tourist psychology of the thousands who come to this fair but troubled land to get rich, and even after years in town still speak of some other where as home and of the community as "they," not "we," after all. It wasn't "our" flood, but "theirs."

Let's Look Around

Natchez and Its Garden Club Pilgrimage.

—By G. J. KOCHENDERFER

NATCHEZ, Miss. — More than casual attention must be paid to this attractive little city of Natchez, for it is here that garden clubs have reached unusual heights in gaining nation-wide attention for their community, by conducting annual pilgrimages, during which many old homes and gardens are opened to sight-seers from all over the country and opportunity is given to realize the graciousness of southern hospitality.

In this city, which ranks second only to St. Augustine, Fla., in age, visitors have the rare privilege of observing the manners and customs of an ante-bellum era when Natchez held place among the wealthiest cities of its size in the country and when magnificent town and plantation homes were built in such a substantial way that they have carried through to remaining as show places of today.

Looking forward with enthusiastic interest to their seventh annual pilgrimage, which extends from March 26 to April 2, members of the Natchez Garden club gather in their club house, Connelly's Tavern, a historic old structure on Ellicott's Hill, and plan final details for the special entertainment features arranged for each evening of the pilgrimage, including colorful re-enactment of a Confederate ball, with tableaux depicting scenes in the south before the war.

Built in 1795, this property has been recently restored, since coming into possession of the Natchez Garden club, and has much the appearance that it had in 1807 when it was a meeting place of Aaron Burr and Blennerhasset as they were hatching an ambitious scheme to seize parts of the United States and Mexico and form a new empire.

NOT until Pilgrimage Week will it be possible to see all of the score or more of old homes that will be opened for that occasion, but when it happened that our arrival in Natchez timed nicely with that of Paul F. Frese, associate editor of Better Homes and Gardens, and when it also transpired that George Healy, a Natchez boy who is now managing editor of the New Orleans Times-Picayune, drove up to show George Matthew Adams around, the matter of visiting several of the fine old places was much simplified, with Mrs. Gerard H. Brandon, Garden club president, and Mrs. Joseph F. Dixon, graciously serving as guides.

It was at the Briars, built in 1812 as the typical fine home of a prosperous southern planter, that Jefferson Davis was married in 1845 to Varina Howell — little dreaming of the sorrow and tragedy that awaited him.

The Briars is reminiscent of the architecture of many of the homes in old Virginia, with furniture and decorations in keeping with the style and age of the property.

LONG-TIME friends have been no more graciously received than was the group of strangers who called at Melrose, a fine example of southern mansion, with furniture, draperies and grounds not materially changed since 1845.

Here was seen one of the large wooden fans, suspended above the dining table, having a rope attachment by which it was kept in motion by a slave, an adaptation of the East Indian "punkah." Lighting is still by candles or kerosene lamps, few of those old homes having been modernized by wiring for electricity.

Among other homes that will be seen by Pilgrimage visitors within the next couple of weeks are Oakland, Rosalie, Elmscourt, Ravenna, Auburn, Melmont, Propinquity, Inglewood—and possibly a dozen more.

There will be increasing trend of tourist traffic toward Natchez in March each year as more people learn of the attractions of Pilgrimage week.

* * *

BUT the saddest and most weird experience in Natchez came in connection with the visit to Longwood, the home that was never finished.

In the late fifties Dr. Haller Nutt, a wealthy plantation owner, started erection of Longwood, which was intended to eclipse in magnificence any home in the state.

When the war started, work on the house was stopped so abruptly that painters and carpenters abandoned brushes and tools to leave for service. They never returned to complete their tasks and those old brushes and dried paint in the cans, are still standing in one of the third-story rooms, reached by an unfinished stairway over uncompleted floors.

It was after dark before we reached Longwood and the colored woman who showed us through the house carried a coal oil lamp which left deep shadows all around. When the third floor was reached, in the midst of those old paint cans and brushes, a gust of wind suddenly extinguished the light.

As we reached for a match to aid in its re-lighting, the kindly old colored woman helpfully volunteered, "Yes, we sure do hear strange noises and a kinda moaning around here every little while."

If there were to be ghosts, Longwood, with its eerie atmosphere and haunting memories would surely be an ideal place to encounter them.

NATCHEZ is fortunate in having Mrs. Edith Wyatt Moore as a local historian and research worker, for it is through her untiring efforts that a vast amount of material regarding early Natchez has been accumulated and recorded in permanent form.

TRADE TREATY WITH CZECHS DRAWS PRAISE

Agreement Hailed As One Of Most Important Of 17 Which Hull Negotiated.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Innovations in the newly-signed trade treaty with Czechoslovakia, state department officials said today, place it among the most important of the 17 which Secretary Hull has negotiated.

"Probably no other country," the state department announced, "has gone as far . . . in attempting to open the way for an expansion of trade by the removal or relaxation of special controls of imports."

Under the treaty, signed last night by Hull and Czech Minister Vladimir Hurban, tariff benefits will be granted on 76.7 per cent of Czech imports from the United States and on 55 per cent of American imports from Czechoslovakia. Trade between the two countries last year totaled $74,680,000.

Controversy Settled.

The controversial question of duties on cheap shoes was settled by fixing an upper limit on their introduction into the United States—a new feature in the treaty system.

Public hearings will begin Monday on a proposed pact with Great Britain. Several others also are in preliminary stages.

Czechoslovakia's major concessions to the United States were in removing import quotas on all but a few items concerned in inter-Danusian trade, in placing raw cotton, copper and certain other products on the duty free list, and in lowering duties on 7.8 per cent of imports from America, principally agricultural and fishery products.

The United States granted appreciable reductions on cotton gloves, leather gloves, hops, glassware, flax manufacturers, imitation beads, beaded handbags, linen napkins, linen table damask, cotton table damask, and buttons.

Public hearings had brought out considerable opposition to cutting duties on cheap cement-soled Czech shoes. The duty, in fact, was not lowered on these, which constitute 90 per cent of the Czech shoe exports to the United States, but was reduced on the 10 per cent of other categories of shoes.

Whole Family Was Going Down Hill

World's Tonic Helped Clear Up Catarrh and Restored Happiness.

"I want to tell everybody about the big thing World's Tonic did for my family," said a lady of Akron, Ohio, Mrs. Helen Taylor, 46 E. State St., a day or two ago. "We first heard of it when I visited some of my folks in Southern Ohio. It was creating a great deal of talk there. My husband, my 16 year old son and I had suffered much from catarrh. My husband had all kinds of trouble with his stomach, and my boy was thin and weak. I kept going, but in the morning my head and throat were full of slime, my appetite was poor and altogether the whole family seemed to be going down hill.

"Well I heard so much about World's Tonic in Ohio that I got a bottle, and all three of us took it. It took seven bottles to clear us all up, but since we got well we are a happy family indeed, and we cannot say too much about the merits of World's Tonic. The boy has gained fifteen pounds in seven weeks, and looks and acts like a boy should. My husband and I feel perfectly well."

World's Tonic is sold by Central Drug Store and all other good druggists.—Adv. (A-135).

would be condemned and government construction started.

Meanwhile, city and county officials already have submitted a plan to the state WPA office which would provide employment for 200 men this spring and summer on ditch and flood prevention projects in the city and county.

The program, requiring expenditures of approximately $50,000, includes the excavation of six drainage ditches in the county and Ritter's Run and Rocky Fork creek in Mansfield.

State approval of the plan is expected before April 1, and County Engineer Howard C Sword will go to Columbus March 15 to confer with other central Ohio engineers and state WPA officials on a more extensive WPA program.

The state was allotted $12,240,000 by congress last week and immediately prepared to put 160,000 persons to work by March 16.

The boost in federal work relief allocations was made imperative by industrial conditions in the northern part of the state

A Farmer's Diary

March 7.

TODAY I went to see a farmer who has a well of the oldtime sort. The walls about it are neatly curbed with stone, and firmly fastened to the top is a windlass, supported on two fine pieces of white oak. On top of these is built a roof, of moderate pitch and small proportions, so that it shelters windlass, rope and well top. A large cedar bucket dangles from the metal fastening of the rope. The crank, of ordinary steel, has its bulging eye forced tightly around the square tapered side of the windlass.

"A splendid well," I said to the farmer. "It must be very old."

He straightened proudly, and his eyes twinkled with pride as he answered.

"Yes—it's old. My grandfather used to tell how plenty of forty-niners parked their covered wagons around this here well—Indians used it 'fore that, I guess."

"How deep is it?" I asked.

"Forty feet—and all walled up, like you see, with wedge-shaped stones. The stream comes out of the solid limestone in the bottom. It's always cold."

"You make me thirsty," I told him. So he loosed the ratchet, and let the bucket down until I heard it splash like in a cavern. The crank turned forward, gripped firmly in his massive hand. The bucket, brimming, dripped water back into the well. The surface sparkled like the dew. He filled the long-handled dipper and I drank. The water had the sweet taste of fresh, cold spring and the cedar pail. He watched with a smile as I drank and drank.

"Can't beat old Adam's ale," he observed. "Come back again some hot day next summer. It's even better then."

I told him that I would. At the turn of the road I looked back to see him—a stocky figure in blue overalls, the guardian of the fountain that has always helped—and always will help—to make our country great.

MOTHERS-IN-LAW, HUNDREDS OF THEM, HAVE THEIR DAY AT LAST

(By United Press)

AMARILLO, Tex. — The Panhandle country raised the cowboys' cheer of "Yip-pee" today for all the mothers-in-law in the world.

Wives and sweethearts stepped into the background. By night there will be 50,000 visitors in Amarillo, all pledged to a campaign to stamp out the jokes that have been told for decades about mothers-in-law. The most famous mother-in-law in the United States, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, is on her way to see one of the greatest parades ever held in the southwest. Tomorrow's parade will include a float on which 500 mothers-in-law will ride.

Gov. James Allred has issued a proclamation setting aside tomorrow as mother-in-law day. Business houses here will close. Streets will be roped off and neighbor states are sending delegations. Mrs. Roosvelt will watch the parade and then make a speech.

All this was started four years ago by Gene Howe, publisher of the Amarillo Globe-News and son of the late Ed. Howe. It was started by a joke which Howe printed in his newspaper column—a joke that did not stick in his own memory, although he recalls that it was something about money.

"I used to write about my own mother-in-law," Howe said, and one day put in the joke about money. The next day a man came into the office and said 'You know, Gene, that joke you had yesterday really hurt my mother-in-law's feelings I went home and found her crying'

"Naturally, I was sorry about that," Howe continued, "so the next day I sat down and wrote another piece. I pretended it was my own mother-in-law I was writing about."

What Howe wrote was this:

"For the first time since I have known her the mother-in-law has had her feelings hurt. When I went home last night I found her flung across the bed and she was sobbing and crying. Something I had said in my column just turned her heart inside out and it had shown me a side or depth to her that I didn't know she had."

STIGLER, Okla.—(U.P.)—Sheriff C. A. Powell led a posse through the woods near here today in search of a wild, naked man who emerged from his hiding place Monday, seized a seven-year-old girl on her way home from school, and tried to assault her.

A carload of bloodhounds was brought here from the state prison at McAlester, and several armed farmers joined the posse to hunt the object of neighborhood terror.

Reports had been circulating for several days that there was a naked man living in the woods.

The man seized 7-year-old Cleo Pierce as she walked along a road with her brother, returning home from their country school. The child said that she squirmed away from him and ran.

YEAR MORE FOR DELINQUENT TAX

Re-enactment Of Whittemore Bill Extends Time For Installment Paying.

With the renewal of the Whittemore tax bill for one year by the Ohio legislature, delinquent taxpayers in Richland county will be given another chance to pay their back taxes in installments and without penalties and interest, County Treasurer John E. Kolb said today.

Property owners who are back several years in their real estate and special assessment taxes can arrange to retire their debt over a 10-year period and save themselves the embarrassment of seeing their names in print later in March, Kolb said.

The bill requires that delinquents must pay their 1936 taxes in full, including the penalties, and their first-half of 1937 tax before they are eligible to pay older tax debts on the installment basis.

The pan, which was in operation last year until Dec. 10, permits payment in annual installments over 10 years, with a 4 per cent carrying charge added after the first year.

The county's delinquent real estate tax bill, including special assessments, amounted to $364,000 at the beginning of 1938, the county treasurer explained. Names of delinquents who do not arrange to pay their tax bills will be published in The News-Journal about March 20, he said.

children. He had been ill for a week with a heart ailment.

Services were held this afternoon at 3 at the Dirlam home in Woodland, with Rev. Peter Young, pastor of the First Congregational church, officiating. Burial was in Mansfield cemetery. Pallbearers were R. E. Burns, Allen Bond, Dr. John Hattery, Frank Thornton, Charles Fuchs and Charles Conklin.

A "lead" in the search for the lost airplane, given to searchers yesterday morning of an object sighted high on Goat mountain and believed to be a plane, could not be followed because of weather conditions yesterday. Predictions for the Fresno area today were for continued unsettled weather, with more snow and rain, Associated Press dispatches said.

In spite of the weather, however, rescue parties continued to work as best they could in two widely separated areas in which persons reported seeing a plane about midnight (Mansfield time) last Tuesday.

Planes at Fresno awaited lifting of storm clouds to search the Bass lake region, 45 miles northeast, where two residents said they saw a large ship about 9.30 p. m., (PST), Tuesday.

Ninety miles north of Fresno, Sheriff Joe Zwinge of Calaveras county prepared to lead a searching party into the Blue mountain section, where 20 persons have said they saw a big plane between 9:45 and 10 p. m., Tuesday.

There was no immediate way of determining which group actually saw the Transcontinental and Western Air transport, seeking an emergency landing field after weather forced it back on a flight from San Francisco to Los Angeles.

Sheriff Zwinge has attempted to lead a horseback party into the mountain country since Sunday, but blinding snowstorms have held the searchers back.

POLICE PUSH NEW CULT QUIZ

Michigan Intensifies Probe Of Fresh Outbreak Of Black Legion Acts.

DETROIT—(U.P.)—State authorities intensified today an inquiry into charges that the Black Legion was operating again in various parts of Michigan.

A Pontiac minister charged that the cult, which terrorized hundreds before it was exposed and broken in 1936, was "after" him because he preached a gospel sanctioning common-law marriages.

A one-man grand jury in Mt. Clemens will investigate state police reports that Ray Ernst, of Jackson, a former Black Legion official had acknowledged being the head of an organization known as the Patriotic Legion of America, with headquarters in Lansing, the state capital.

Prosecutor Vincent L. Fitzgerald charged that the organization was nothing more than a new Black Legion. Ernst served 90 days and was placed on three years probation in 1936 in connection with the flogging of a southern Michigan prison guard by Black Legionnaires.

Chief William Hanson of the Jackson state police barracks said that Ernst denied that the Patriotic Legion had any connection with the dread cult whose black-robed members flogged and even killed persons of whom they disapproved.

"Ernst said the new organization was strictly patriotic and had no blood oath nor code of violence such as was practiced by the Black Legion," Hanson reported to Fitzgerald.

The prosecutor said that Ernst would be asked to testify before the grand jury, and that "if he fails to come voluntarily, we will issue a subpena for him."

Mrs. Kittie F. Neumann Sketches "Madame Curie" Before Club; Mrs. C. H. Henkel Entertains; Mrs. Jennings Opens Session.

MRS. C. H. HENKEL was hostess yesterday at the Women's Club to members of the Victorian club. Mrs. Alice P. Jennings opened the meeting by presenting Article 3 of the Constitution after which she led the discussion. Mrs. Kittie F. Neumann then reviewed "Madame Curie," a biography by her daughter, Eve Curie.

This book traces the life of M. and Mme. Curie from their early beginnings in the field of scientific endeavor. It tells in detail of the life of the young Polish girl who lived to become one of the world's most outstanding scientists. The biography, which is both fairly and understandingly written, carries the scientist from her girlhood up to the time of her death, giving both the scientific and the personal life of Mme. Curie.

During the business meeting it was decided to make a contribution to the Mansfield Girl Scout movement. It was agreed to make this donation to the Scout Council.

Mrs. Oliver Henkel, a guest, and Mrs. L. A. Peck presided at the tea table which was daintily decorated with spring flowers. Mrs. Irl Fisher will be hostess for the next regular meeting of the club at her home on Park avenue west on March 21.

Room of Her Own.

When your small daughter decides in no uncertain terms that she wants a room that is hers, here are some down-to-earth suggestions for co-operating. Have her replan her room on paper first, advises House Beautiful. Let her replace her toy box with new things. But have her make sure that the new furniture will fit the space in her room. Give her a budget—no matter how small—and let her plan her purchases within it. Teach her to bring home samples—hundreds if necessary—to experiment with before she finally buys curtains and slip covers. And make her ask herself the same questions you ask yourself. Is the pattern in her chintz too large for the room? Will she grow tired of the color? Has every piece of furniture a place and use? And above all, don't be alarmed if she demands pink rosebuds and pale blue organdie on the one hand, or imitation leopard skin and black sofa pillows on the other. Teach her good taste with tact and some new ideas.

Sports Frock Made of Honey Colored Wool

Wool, an ever popular fabric for sport dresses, has climbed into fame recently because of the publicity New York club women have been giving it. The dress shown is made of honey colored wool and is worn with a blue belt, gloves and hat. It is an example of a lightweight fabric made from virgin wool. The club women seek to classify woolen fabrics as to types and raw material so that the average house wife will know what her new dress is made of, what its wearing qualities are, and what to look for when buying woolens.

Dainties for Hostess.

All hostesses are acquainted with the queen olive and the pimento stuffed olive, in their traditional glass bottles. Not so customary is the newer "hostess selection" of olives; a glass jar is filled to the brim with alternating rows of queen, ripe and green olives . . . the stuffed varieties being filed with such dainties as tiny white onions, crisp nutmeats and hearts of celery.

The jar itself is pleasing in form, and the arrangement of the contents attractive, so that the bottle may be placed right on the table, so each guest may choose from the selection.

Blues are popular in tweed jacket suits—greenish blue and slate blue. Gold and leaf-rust are other fashionable colors.

Gives Advice To Man Who Fears Illness

By VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I read in the paper about the young man who was ill and didn't know how to tell his best girl about it. The situation was so like an experience of mine that I couldn't wait to write to give him some advice and encouragement, as I can well imagine the state of mind he is in.

"So to him I say this: Go to another doctor, and perhaps one or two more, and don't give up hope, just as Virginia Lee advised, and tell your girl friend immediately.

"I had a similar experience, except the case was reversed. My boy friend had seemed worried for a long time, and although I knew he loved me, the matter of marriage never was mentioned. Finally, one day he came to see me and put the matter to me in a straightforward manner. He told me for several months he had been suffering from an illness from which he was doubtful of ever recovering, and the doctor advised him to give up all thought of marriage, as his wife and children would be subject to contracting his illness. In all fairness he thought I should know and that we should part. This was a terrific blow to me at first, because I loved him dearly, but, after thinking it over calmly, I decided not to give him up without a fight for our happiness and his health.

"He had the utmost faith in his family doctor, and as he was a man of good reputation, he couldn't seem to doubt his word, but I persuaded him to visit another doctor, who told us very much the same thing. Although we were almost ready to give up we visited still another doctor. This man told us he had a chance of recovery, and although it was a small one, it was worth the try.

"Neither of us had very much money, but with what he had and what I persuaded him to borrow from me, he was away for six months to a place where he was well taken care of, and received the right treatment, recommended by the last doctor. We had very little hope that he would get better, and truthfully, when I said goodbye to him I really thought we would never be together for always, and neither did he, for he tried to get me to give him up and not wait for him. That is how discouraged we were, and how black his chances looked.

"But today I am the happiest girl in the world. He is not completely well, but he is well on the way, and will not suffer any relapse, so the doctor says, and we intend to marry this June. And his illness was neither a pleasant one, nor a familiar one. It was one of the worst.

"So I cannot help saying, 'Don't give up.' Tell your girl friend. If she loves you she won't mind. She will only want to help you and see you better. And you need someone to stand by you.

"A SYMPATHIZER."

I have printed this fine letter because it is such a splendid, helpful one. Such letters make me feel this little column is so worth while. I not only hope the discouraged young man who wrote to me will read it, but others who may be suffering from the same kind of trouble. Thank you so much, dear "Sympathizer."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

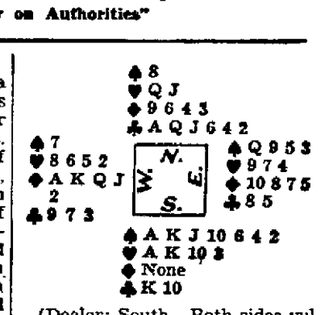
By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

THE TRUMP COUP

It is not necessary to lead a trump through the opponent's guarded trump honor toward your own tenace in order to capture his. If you are able to time the play of the hand so that, toward the close, you lead some other suit through him, in which you can over-ruff if he ruffs, you obtain the same result. When that timing is obtained by using up some of your own trumps for ruffing, so that you will shorten your own holding and not be caught with the late lead in the wrong hand, you are using a trump coup. And if the cards you ruffed to shorten your trumps happen to be winning high cards, then the play is called a "grand coup."

One declarer in the duplicate where this deal arose landed in 7-Spades, although most of his competitors were content to play for 6-Spades.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

His ambitions were realized by fine play, whereas the others, having bid only six, gave up one trump trick and claimed the rest. The bidder of seven proceeded to trump the lead of the diamond K with the spade 2. He then led a heart to the J and finessed the spade 10. Now he laid down the spade A, and East's Q-9 holding was disclosed. His next move was to lead to the heart Q, and ruff a diamond. Followed the club K, overtaken with the A and another diamond ruff. Next came the club 10 to the Q. When the club J was led, it did not matter whether East ruffed or discarded, for the declarer had the remainder of the tricks in either event.

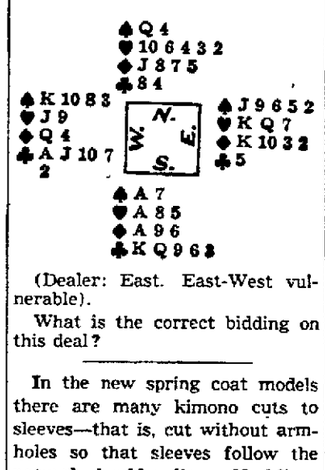
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable).

What is the correct bidding on this deal?

Mold Lips To Perfect Contours

By JULIET SHELBY

(Central Press Writer on Beauty)

Mold your lips nearer to your heart's desire. It is a sure-fire tip if you want to have the masculine compliments show a big increase. When you are dissatisfied with the size or shape of your mouth, or even in the way you apply your lipstick, you are definitely at a disadvantage. Your whole face is out-of-drawing, and you just can't relax and be yourself.

There is nothing more trying to the innocent bystander than watching a person who thinks her mouth is too big. She tries to screw it up into a rosebud, and the result is not only painful for her but fierce for the onlooker. Her squinched-up mouth gives her a peculiar expression that is hardly human. The little mouth that wants to be larger is just as bad. This one goes in for the broad though insincere smile. Even when she is hearing a hard luck story the smile stays frozen on. Naturally this is enraging. The next horrible example is the messy lipstick applier. She has a smear at the corner of her mouth and red teeth. This one really drives men wild. They itch to pull out a handkerchief and clean her up. But she prattles on gaily, innocent of the fact that she has ruined her chances.

Now our mouths can be what we make them. Until recently lipsticks have been used for startling effects. But now the trend is toward naturalness. Because gentlemen prefer soft, alluring lips.

Be careful when selecting a lipstick. Pick one that suits your natural coloring and blends perfectly with your rouge and face powder. If you wish to be a bit grand, match lipstick and nail polish.

How to Apply Lipstick.

If your mouth seems to be doing all right just as Nature made it, then the application follows a regular form. With the lipstick trace the natural shape of your upper lip. Roll your lipstick from the outer corner under your lip up toward the center. Then press your lips together, imprinting the color on your lower lip, and blend with your finger tips.

Use lots of color if you want to make thin lips look fuller and softer. Start with the usual procedure but put some lipstick on the lower lip also. Extend it just a little bit below the natural line.

If it's a too full mouth that's worrying you, apply the lipstick in the center of the upper lip only. Press your lips together, blend the color and finish the trick by holding your lower lip in, and putting a dark shade of powder on the lower edge.

Don't forget to wipe away any extra lipstick at the corners and on the inner curve of your lips. Lipstick on the inner curve is bound to get on your teeth and make you a red-toothed menace.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Eyelashes.

June: The eyelash coloring you mention is, to my knowledge, harmless.

Eyeshadow.

Virginia: You may wear the blue, blue-gray or gray eyeshadow cream. The blue is best for evening wear only, while the blue gray and gray may be used for both daytime and evening wear.

Teeth.

Janet: I would suggest that you have your teeth cleansed and polished by a good dentist, in order to remove all tartar. Proper brushing should then keep your teeth white and sparkling.

Skin Bleach.

Rita: Lemon juice and diluted peroxide both comprise excellent skin bleaches. Either bleach should be permitted to dry on the skin, and then a bit of cold cream should be applied in order to counteract any drying effects.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

For a long second after Dicky's request that I tell him quickly what I had on my mind so that he could get away and "hit the hay," I struggled with the almost overwhelming desire to tell him that I did not believe his excuse, and that I was sure he was leaving for some appointment about which he did not wish me to know.

Then, for very shame, I pulled myself together and give him a calm, matter-of-fact answer.

"I'll try to hurry through what I have to tell you," I said, "but I hope you'll be patient for a few minutes. It's something which seems terribly important to me, but perhaps I'm mistaken. At any rate, I must have your advice."

The lines in his face relaxed, and he grinned amiably at me.

"That's the best thing I does, handing out free advice," he told me. "Regular Bee-atrice Fairfax, I is. Spill your troubles, and old Doc Graham will diagnose, and prescribe."

I drew a chair close to his.

"Please listen carefully," I said, "and I'll try to make my story brief."

Relates Occurrences.

"I am all ears," he assured me, and I plunged into the saga of the happenings since we had arrived at the hotel. I told him of the hotel manager's refusal to assign a suite to Miss Whitlock on our floor until I had summoned Philip Veritzen by long distance telephone and secured his permission, of Veritzen's reservation of the whole floor with the ostensible reason of giving us privacy, of his instructions to the carpenter, and my own demand for bolts and chains, of Miss Whitlock's belief that the manager was listening at the door, and last, of Mary's remembrance that her father-in-law owned the Lansfield.

"Well I'll be eternally ginswozzled!" he commented a bit excitedly at the last revelation. Then he began to drum with his finger tips upon his chair arm. I kept as still as the traditional mouse, for I knew he was going over the problem in his own mind and looking at it from all angles.

Madge Overanxious.

"I think you're overanxious," he decided at last. "After all, if he needs a place to park his daughter-in-law and chaperone in seclusion for a few weeks, what's the use of sending them to some rival hostelry?"

"It's the secrecy," I said, when I saw that he was expecting an answer. "Why couldn't he have told us that he owned the Lansfield, instead of having the manager go through all that rigmarole of consulting him, as if he were just a patron who had reserved a whole floor in order to insure us privacy?"

"Do you know your revered producer so little," Dicky countered, "as not to realize that secrecy and an atmosphere of melodrama are the breath of life to him? I'm sure you'll find it's the only thing behind this present arrangement and that your fears are all moonshine. Nevertheless—"

He paused, and I sat suddenly upright, the muscles of my spine stiffening. What he was going to say next was the real meat of the account. The rest had been rhetorical.

"Nevertheless," Dicky repeated, "you never can tell. There's always the thousandth chance that he may be up to something, and, if he were vicious enough, there are any number of things he might stage. It's a good thing you have Miss Whitlock. If I were you, I wouldn't let Mary ever be alone for a single minute—and—there's no use in getting rust on your locks and chains."

Household Hints

By MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

LUNCHEON

Spaghetti
Whole Wheat Bread and Butter
Celery or Green Salad
Sour Cream Cookies
Milk or Tea

I have tested these two recipes very many times and they are satisfactory. I never can remember just the right amount of flour to add to the cooky batter, but it depends somewhat, of course, on whether you use all-purpose flour or pastry flour. I am going to make some in a day or so and will jot it down then.

Today's Recipes.

SOUR CREAM COOKIES—One cup butter or other shortening, two cups sugar, two eggs, one cup sour milk or cream, one teaspoon soda, one teaspoon nutmeg, flour to make a soft dough. This amount will make 30 large cookies.

SPAGHETTI—Cut eight slices of bacon in small pieces, add two onions, cut fine, and fry until brown. Add one can tomatoes and let cook one-half hour. Cook spaghetti in salted water until soft, then mix all together and put in baking dish and grate cheese on top. Put in oven and bake for 15 minutes

Plum Sherbet.

Twelve canned green gage plums, one-fourth cup powdered sugar, one-half cup plum juice, one-half cup white corn syrup, few grains salt, one cup heavy cream. Drain plums and reserve one-half cup of the juice Rub stoned plums through coarse strainer. Add powdered sugar and stir until dissolved. Combine the plum juice, syrup and salt. Blend well, add to plum and sugar mixture to allow to stand for a few minutes. Add unbeaten cream in thin stream, stirring gently all the time. Pour at once into refrigerator tray and freeze quickly. Recipe makes one quart.

Chocolate Orange Frosting.

Two squares unsweetened chocolate, one and one-third cups (one can) sweetened condensed milk, one tablespoon orange juice, one tablespoon grated orange rind. Melt chocolate in top of double boiler. Add sweetened condensed milk, stir over boiling water five minutes, or until mixture thickens. Add orange juice and rind and blend thoroughly. Cool. Spread on cake. Garnish with strips of candied orange peel if desired. Makes enough frosting to cover tops and sides of two (nine-inch) layers, or top and sides of loaf cake generously, or about 24 cup cakes.

Herbs Staging Come Back.

The use of herbs in American cooking is having a definite vogue after far too long a period of neglect. In the earlier days of American history, when every family had its herb garden, the use of these seasonings was a matter of course, but with the development of city life the art of herb seasoning went into a decline.

The present revival of herb interest has been made possible by the spice industry which has added to its line of products many of the herbs in dried form. For further convenience in cooking many of them are also available in powdered form, which makes for easy amalgamation with other ingredients in the recipes.

Crushed strawberry is one of the later colors. It threatens to take the place of thistle, which was so popular last season.

Child Runs Away From Home Often

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

Head, Dept. Parent Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

QUESTION: My little 25-month-old runs away. She will cross a busy street and go to the home of an older child she likes very much. This has happened several times, and every time, as soon as I found her, I gave her a good spanking, but it did no good.

Answer: No wonder the spanking failed. She was spanked for being found, not for running away; so she supposed. Besides, she had a lot of fun while at her playmate's house each time, and still more over the excitement she had caused. If you wish to get quick results, let everything else go. When she is out of doors be always close by her, but not holding her. Make very clear to her the boundary lines—the tree, the stone, the crack in the sidewalk. The moment she steps over the bounds be upon her and give her a spanking that she will remember. Act in like manner every time she attempts to cross the boundary. Then she will associate the pain with leaving the premises, which is what you want her to do. It may take a week or two to effect permanent training. In the meanwhile go with her occasionally to the house of that playmate and have the playmate's mother bring her child to your house.

Wants To Be Amused.

Q. My little boy almost three wants me to help amuse him nearly all the time he is awake. I have a maid. How may I have some time to myself and train my boy to amuse himself more?

A. Your problem might be more easily solved if you had no maid. Then you would have to let this little fellow's wishes wait at times. Work out a time chart and follow it. On it provide for doing something for stretches of 15 or 20 minutes. During such intervals let the child know that you are busy; then no matter how much he pleads or cries, do nothing to amuse him until the designated interval has ended. The child growing tired of waiting, will eventually discover some ways at self-amusement. Gradually increase the length and number of these intervals. I hope mothers of younger babies never let the infant learn to expect so much attention. Left alone enough, the baby can easily learn to be happy and can learn to play without being taught.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, March 9.

Great opportunity for advancement and prosperity is read from this day's lunar and mutual aspects. However, there may be difficult, treacherous and adverse complications that may tax the sagacity, good judgment and possibly the fidelity of friends. A matter of fraud or deception may call for vigilance. Read and sign all writings with caution.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves confronted by a year of great opportunity for progress, promotion and financial prosperity, although they may have to encounter many difficult situations and subtleties. Fraud and schemes may demand very great discernment and acumen.

A child born on this day may have many talents and ambitions, with sufficient enterprise, versatility and personal prestige to reach high station in life. On the other hand, there may be many curious or subtle characteristics luring it into a secluded and aloof career.

HOUSE FIGHT ON TAX REVISIONS NEARS CLIMAX

Amendment To Kill Surtax On Family-Owned Corporations New Battleground.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The house fight over the administration's tax revision bill approached a climax today after defeat of a Republican proposal to repeal entirely the undistributed profits levy.

Leaders expected the biggest battle to develop over an amendment to kill a special surtax on family-owned and other closely-held corporations. Republicans and some Democrats were backing the amendment, but administration forces expressed confidence it would not be approved.

Votes Still Needed.

First, however, votes had to be taken on two other proposals, which would:

1. Impose a flat 12½ per cent tax on capital gains in place of a section establishing maximum rates of 16 to 39.2 per cent on gains realized on assets held for more than a year.

2. Require the treasury to continue making public corporation salaries in excess of $15,000. Although the house voted 2 to 1 last year for repeal of the requirement, President Roosevelt has recommended its retention.

The amendment by Representative Treadway (R., Mass.) to eliminate the undistributed profits levy was defeated yesterday 78 to 33.

The house thus stood by the suggestion of its ways and means committee that corporations having incomes below $25,000 pay only a 12½ to 16 per cent income tax—no undistributed profits tax. Most larger-income concerns would pay what amounts to a 4 per cent surtax on undistributed profits in addition to a 16 per cent income tax.

All corporations now pay an income tax of 8 to 15 per cent and an undistributed profits levy of 7 to 27 per cent.

Republicans said the Treadway proposal would lower government revenues by $80,000,000; Democrats put the estimate at $200,000,000 to $250,000,000

Richland county relief clients will receive 525 bushels of apples in a distribution Wednesday at the county relief office at 28 Orange street. Earl Nist, relief director, said today.

Families of five or less will get a half bushel while those of six or more members will be allowed a bushel. Applicants must provide their own containers for the apples and show their green relief cards

Distribution of food products to county relief families in February included 27,400 pounds of potatoes, 22,600 pounds of oranges, 25,344 pounds of apples, 1,745 pounds of rice, and 2,520 pounds of evaporated milk. The food which is supplied by the federal surplus commodities administration, is distributed through local relief units

lowed by an outburst from Yagoda himself who caused a sensation in the courtroom by repudiating part of his former confession

Yagoda denied he had given orders for the murders of Vyacheslav Menzinsky, former secret police chief, and M. Peshkov, but admitted he had ordered the deaths of Gorky and M. Jubishev.

Before Yagoda began to testify, Levin said he first met Yagoda in 1920 but rarely saw him until 1928, when Gorky came to Moscow, assertedly suffering from tuberculosis, and stating he had been forced to live in Italy since his youth, coming to Moscow only during the summer months.

Levin said he picked a group of Soviet physicians who took turns in staying with Gorky in Italy during the winter.

Gorky's personal secretary, P P. Krushkov, another of the defendants, then testified that in May, 1933, Yagoda told him it was necessary to kill Gorky "because Gorky stands in the way of the big men"

"First kill young Maxim," the secretary quoted Yagoda as ordering "Gorky loves him. He will then be a broken old man. Get young Maxim to drink. . . ."

Yagoda was on his feet again, however, denying he had talked to Krushkov.

Federal Grand Jury Returns Bills In Wendel Kidnaping.

NEW YORK — (AP) — A federal grand jury today indicted Ellis H. Parker, sr., Burlington county, N. J., chief of detectives, his son, Ellis, jr., and three others as kidnapers under the Lindbergh law.

The indictment concerned the alleged kidnaping of Paul H Wendel, former Trenton resident, from New York to the Parkers' home in Mt. Holly, N. J., Feb. 24 1936

At that time, the Parkers issued a "confession" signed by Wendel that he had kidnaped Charles A. Lindbergh, jr., the crime for which Bruno Richard Hauptmann was under the death sentence.

headway in wiping out bootlegging in the state and struck at the way the department was conducted prior to the time he took office.

Davey defended the bailment warehouse purchase system now employed by the state, declaring it to be the best in the several states.

He asked "what else did they find?", and then answered himself:

"A trucking contract that appears to yield excess profit. I would not defend this, and the director will have orders to force a revision of that contract or else attempt to cancel it, if it can be done legally."

He twice sought to justify charges that several persons are on the state payroll by saying that some employes receive two salaries, some from the state and some from the federal government. He cited the case of professors at Ohio State university who receive part of their salary from two and three sources, the federal government, state and county. He also cited common pleas judges who get part of their salary from the state and part from the county.

Although he said the trucking contract would be looked into, the governor made no mention of what action will be taken against Joseph Maiden, Canton liquor department enforcement officer, who admitted raising an expense account. Davey has said he is investigating the charges.

70 Quarantined With Measles In City and County

An outbreak of measles in Richland county today showed a marked increase in the past week with more than 70 cases reported to health authorities

Dr. Ray C. Rehder, city-county public health commissioner, said today that reports of the state health department showed measles the most prevalent of any communicable diseases

There is no cause for alarm, he said because the malady always shows an increase during the months that children are in school. He cited the state health department's report which showed that only 400 cases of the disease were recorded in the state last August as compared to the 4,000 cases reported for the last two weeks of February.

Health department figures showed that 223 cases in Richland county were reported to the health department during February. Of that figure 187 were recorded in Mansfield and 36 were in the county. For the first seven days of this month 50 cases of measles have been reported in the city and 15 in the county

The quarantine period for the disease it ten days, Dr Rehder said.

THEATER

IN CASE loyal fans of Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon have wondered about them they have been in England all this time, and while they were on their South African trip, their five-year old daughter Barbara was in a London convent . . . Katharine Hepburn, Cary Grant and Doria Nolan will co-star in Columbia's version of the Philip Barry story, "Holiday", which was used as a radio skit by Rosalind Russell and Don Ameche the other Sunday night . . . Joan Blondell continues in her fight to get away from "type" roles by playing opposite Melvyn Douglas in "There's Always a Woman" . . . Gary Cooper, a film star who has been married only once, plays a man who has been married eight times in "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife", with Claudette Colbert as the eighth . . .

Frothy Musical.

Betty Grable, chosen by artists as the most perfectly formed girl in Hollywood, city of lovely chassises, plays her first leading role in "Thrill of a Life Time", which opens at the Madison today for a two day engagament. Betty is winning out in Hollywood through sheer good looks and determination. She recently was married to Jackie Coogan. In the cast of this frothy musical comedy are The Yacht Club Boys, Judy Canova of the radio hillbilly trio, Johnny Downs and Eleanor Whitney, Ben Blue, Lief Erikson, and Larry Crabbe. In addition Dorothy Lamour sings a specialty number as a guest artist at a summer colony. Youthful romance and tuneful melodies, with eye-filling shots of Fanchon dancing girls, are combined in the picture.

Spiking The Rumors.

There seems to be authority in those love scenes between Tony Martin and Alice Faye in "Sally, Irene and Mary", and it is said that Miss Faye hopes they'll spike the rumors that the Martin-Faye marriage has already found the going difficult. They are an attractive couple and add a lot to this second film version of the stage musical. Joan Davis, one of the funnier comediennes, is a highlight of the show, while the brunet Marjorie Weaver, who made a hit in "Second Honeymoon", and is the third member of the trio of girls around whom the story is written, is satisfactory. A number of new songs are introduced, several of which will be popular. The supporting cast is star-studded including such comedy makers as Fred Allen and Jimmy Durante. The picture runs through Wednesday at the Ohio.

Laurel and Hardy.

The Majestic breaks its regular schedule this week to hold the Sunday picture over for two days, so that the bill that opened last Sunday will be held through Wednesday, with a new show opening on Thursday. A Laurel and Hardy comedy, "Blotto", takes those two funsters to the Foreign Legion, there to forget a girl. It proves a difficult task when they find that practically every man in the Legion has a picture of the girl they are trying to forget, including their commanding officer. But their sorrow is increased when they capture a Riff chieftan—and find on him a picture of the same girl. The other attraction is "Penrod and His Twin," with the Mauch twins, Billy and Bobby, heading the cast.

Gold Days Revived.

Lois January and Bob Baker bring a long ago era to the Ritz screen in "Courage of the West", which is being shown along with Paul Muni in "Life of Emile Zola". They revive the stirring days of 1863 when shipments of gold bullion from West to East were the sole hope of the Union Army. The progress of a gold wagon caravan across the plains is realistically portrayed. The action moves up to 1884 when the bandit and his son who has been adopted by others, are thrown together under unusual circumstances. J. Farrel MacDonald, Fuzzy Knight, and Carl Stockdale, are old timers of the screen, who take part in the action. The Muni picture has been the most talked of picture of the past year.

CONFER AGAIN

Council Committees Take Up Water Project Tonight.

Another "round table" discussion on proposed improvements to the city's water system and a plan for financing with a proposed bond issue will be studied by council's finance and water committees tonight.

The project, calling for the expenditure of $142,000, all by WPA, is a part of the comprehensive improvements planned for development of the city's water distribution system.

As outlined at a joint meeting last week by city Designing Engineer A M. Mock, any part could be undertaken as an individual step toward bolstering the water supply

The question before the committees tonight will be to decide just what part of the plan would be undertaken first and whether revenue bonds shall be issued by the water works department to finance the project.
